Pleads with New Yorkers To End Financial Chaos At Hands of New Dealers

Declares Great Majority of Americans Have Decided To Be Free of Domination by Government

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie returned tonight to the heart of the home territory of Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn and told a cheering crowd in the Bronx Coliseum that the best way to prevent the proscription of any group in America is to take the country "off the road to inflation and financial chaos."

Before a crowd estimated by police at 15,000, Willkie declared that "a great majority of Americans have decided again to be free—free from the domination and the control of a cynical government that seeks to get American citizens to vote the way it wants."

Thousands of persons lined the streets, jamming the sidewalks and slowing his motorcade from the Mott Haven station to the Coliseum.

Willkie said that in New York "where seventy-five per cent of us are of foreign descent," people knew that the greatest hope for all groups is to make a prosperous America."

He said that oppression against classes always has grown from economic depression, and argued that bigotry always has arisen in nations which "have gone down the road of bankruptcy or of inflation or depression."

Willkie came into the populous east for an intensive four days of campaigning before making a final swing into the midwest.

In an address prepared for the annual forum of the New York Herald Tribune, the Republican presidential nominee said:

"In city after city, and in state after state, public officials have campaigned on the record of their ability to obtain for their constituents a larger share of the money being poured out by the federal government.

"By arbitrary grants-in-aid, by subsidized public works, and by federal manipulation of relief money, the New Deal has sapped the independence of the states.

"The local governments are encouraged to become dependent upon federal funds and local officials are controlled by the deadly threat of the withdrawal of federal aid."

Aids Corrupt Machines

Willkie said that "by the judicious use of federal patronage" the New Deal had "strengthened the grip of corrupt political machines upon our cities."

"And these machines, in turn," he continued, "are throwing their enormous weight into the present election in an effort to deliver to the New Deal the electoral vote of some of the biggest states in the union."

Contending that "Democracy cannot survive under conditions of prolonged depression," Willkie said that "depressions are the very soil in

Nice Charges WPA Workers Receive $4 Extra Wages

Won't Get It after Election, He Says; Denial by Davis

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Former Gov. Harry W. Nice, Republican senatorial candidate, asserted tonight he had "learned from unimpeachable sources" that WPA workers in Baltimore received $4 extra last payday and would receive $4 more next pay day.

Nice said in a statement the extra salary "is but a cheap effort to bribe voters in the coming presidential election."

"I feel quite confident that the $4 extra will not be forthcoming the pay day following election," he continued, "nor do I believe that the WPA workers now receiving the extra $4 think for a moment that it will be forthcoming."

State WPA headquarters here denied such additional salary had been or would be paid workers here.

Davis Denies Charge

"The charge . . . is absolutely without foundation," M. H. Davis, WPA employment director, said. "There has been no change in the WPA wage scale since Sept. 1, 1939."

Davis added that workers on pressing national defense projects could be granted permission to work additional hours weekly to speed completion of the job. One such exemption was made at Fort Meade Aug. 22 and a second on Sept. 25. Permitting workers on army barracks there to work forty instead of thirty hours and earn an additional $3.70.

"Both these exemptions are on national defense projects which the law requires the WPA to expedite as much as possible," Davis continued. "A total of 275 WPA workers of the state's total of 13,800 are affected by these exemptions."

Only in Baltimore Area

He asserted these were the only workers in the Baltimore area who may have earned more than their usual wages.

Nice's statement said he was "pleased" to see that "these men and women working on government projects have belatedly been recognized for their real worth," and added:

"This is but another evidence of my contention . . . that pay for government workers was not up to living standards."

The candidate said he was "exceedingly sorry to be forced to believe" that workers "will not receive either the $4 or even a pay envelope after the election, should the New Deal be continued in power — which from all indications I feel will not happen."

"The extra $4 constitutes purely and solely a political bearing of gifts by political Trojan horse operators," his statement said.

Former Governor of New York Blames "Appeal to Bigotry" for Egg Assaults on the Willkies

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, former Democratic governor of New York, said tonight that recent egg assaults on Wendell Willkie and his wife constituted an "appeal to bigotry" and he charged that President Roosevelt was "the greatest offender."

"Tell me," Smith demanded of a large Brooklyn audience of Democrats, "—for Willkie, tell me what's happened to the country that a lovely American lady like Mrs. Willkie, and her husband, on a crusade to save this country, are spattered with eggs?"

"I'll tell you what it is, it is appeals to bigotry—to setting up class against class—and the chief apostle xxx the man in the White House is himself the greatest offender."

Smith, who was himself nominated for the presidency in 1928 by the man he now is opposing for a third term, was given a tremendous ovasion as he walked on the stage of the Brooklyn Academy of Music to deliver his first campaign address for the Republican candidate.

Berlin Silent on Hitler Conference With Gen. Franco

Cordial Spirit of Comradship Shows, Statement Says

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Adolf Hitler conferred with Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco on the French-Spanish frontier today in an extension of Axis maneuvers begun yesterday with Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of France, and informed Germans indicated the conversations were definitely tieing France and Spain into Axis plans for reorganizing Europe.

A terse communique issued hours after the Fuehrer met Franco said merely they talked "in a cordial spirit of comradeship uniting both nations. No hint is given regarding the subject discussed."

German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, who sat in on yesterday's conference, accompanied Hitler today—as did Franco's foreign minister and brother-in-law, Ramon Serrano Suner.

Informed sources said today's meeting could be regarded as a concrete result of Serrano Suner's visits to Rome and Berlin a month ago. It is assumed here that spade work then cleared the way for the face-to-face meeting between the two chiefs of state for thorough discussions and perhaps binding decisions.

Following the Hitler-Laval talk, somewhere in France, the vanquished republic became the object of marked attention from both Germany and England. This much can be said despite the absence of official German interpretation of that meeting.

As regards the negotiations with France, some political observers usually in the know compare the Petain government to the first post-world war German cabinet headed by Philipp Ccheidemann. The similarity, they said, consisted in the fact both were likely to prove mere transitory arrangements.

Hitler naturally would prefer to deal with a firmly entrenched French leadership, these sources said.

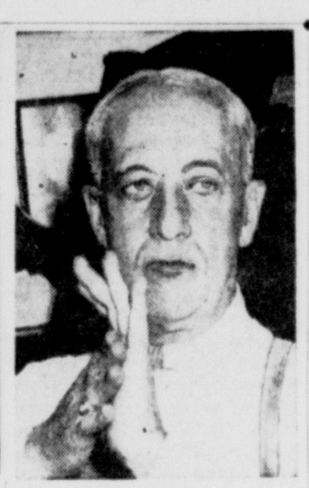

Nevertheless, yesterday's conversation appears to have been productive.

CHAPTER 10

THE NEW DESPOTISM

BY SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Democratic Representative in Congress for the Third Indiana District 1930-1938.

The callous disregard of fundamental decencies by our bureaucrats is gradually coming to light.

We learn that NLRB was to notify RFC of any American business against which a "charge" had been made, or was about to be made that it had been guilty of an unfair labor practice.

If the concern had arranged for a loan from the RFC, the latter was to withhold all disbursements to the borrower. We are told that Secretary Perkins' Wage and Hour division made similar arrangements with the RFC, and that an effort was made to induce the Treasury to do the same with public building construction.

It has never been the rule that a penalty could be imposed upon an American citizen before he was found guilty. In the horse and buggy days, he was entitled to a fair trial before judgment, and judgment before jail.

That is old stuff today. The New Deal injustice is to shut off credit the instant anyone is "charged" with violating the law, or even when he is "about to be charged." The assumption now is that the citizen is guilty first and innocent only if he can prove it.

But this assumes that Congress had in fact authorized the withholding of credit in addition to a fine after the offender, upon due trial, has been found guilty. The case goes deeper.

Congress has not authorized anyone to withhold credit as an additional punishment for an unfair labor practice, either before or af-

British Report Great Victory in Attack upon German Invasion Forces

Declare Nazi Fleet Has Been Dispersed and Seaport Bases Wrecked over Wide Area

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 23—A great victory in a six weeks-long aerial counter-offensive that smashed a full-dress German attempt at invasion was claimed officially by the British today and put down as one more historic defense of these islands.

Through its news service, the air ministry told the story—how British bombers had doggedly ridden the air over a 2,000-mile Nazi front, alternately attacking and observing, until the German invasion fleet had been dispersed at last and German invasion springboards had been wrecked from Narvik, Norway, to Bordeaux, far to the south of France.

Royal Air Force Stronger

It was the first such sweeping success yet claimed against the peril that long has lain across the channel, and it was accompanied by these other declarations intended to show that the Royal Air Force was developing quietly into an instrument of destiny for Britain:

1. A claim, also made by the air ministry, that a fifth of all the Nazis' productive capacity for war had been affected by British bombs which night upon night have fallen from the far interior of Germany to the German-held French coastline.

2. The statement of Captain Harold Balfour, the air undersecretary, that the position achieved by the air arm, however unspectacular it might

Rome Sees British Seeking French Aid For a Land Drive

ROME, Oct. 23 (AP) — An Axis move to prevent France from falling again under the influence of Great Britain—possibly to be used as a battlefield for a British land offensive against Germany — was reported tonight as Adolf Hitler's aim in negotiating with French Vice Premier Pierre Laval.

Amid official silence, foreign circles here heard that the Nazi fuehrer sounded out Laval on a three-point plan for "collaboration" between France and the Rome-Berlin Axis powers.

1. Laval would have still greater power in France although the aged premier Marshal Philippe Petain, World war "hero of Verdun," would remain as the governmental figurehead.

2. French functionaries would be allowed to resume their administrative posts in the German-occupied area, including Paris.

3. Germany would aid in France's "reconstruction."

Whether military collaboration was envisaged as reported aboard could not be confirmed here.

Separate Italian parleys with the French were forecast after the completion of negotiations undertaken by Hitler. Italian support of any German offer was taken for granted since Hitler and Premier Mussolini are understood to have agreed on this point at their recent Brenner Pass meeting.

German troops would remain in the occupied area — particularly along the so-called "invasion" coast on the English channel — but the Germans would probably turn the administration of the occupied area back to France, informed sources said.

President Says He Will Labor All the Days of His Life To Keep Peace

Accuses Republicans of Importing Propaganda Methods of the "Dictator Countries"

By MAX BOYD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23, (AP)—President Roosevelt, accusing his opposition of importing propaganda methods of the "dictator countries" to convince the public that he wished to lead the country into war, said tonight that "it is for peace I shall labor all the days of my life."

In a political speech broadcast from Philadelphia's convention hall, where he was renominated in 1936 and where Wendell L. Willkie was named the Republican standard bearer this summer, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I consider it a public duty to answer falsifications with fact. I will not pretend that I find this an unpleasant duty. I am an old campaigner, and I love a good fight."

The first of five political addresses with which the president is winding up his second re-election campaign, the speech came at the end of a day in which tens of thousands of people in Philadelphia and neighboring Camden, N. J., had turned out to see the chief executive on his way to defense manufacturing plants.

Replies to War Charge

Mr. Roosevelt accused the opposition of making numerous "deliberate falsifications" against him in the campaign, and said that one "outrageously false charge" had been made "to strike terror into the hearts of our citizens."

"It is a charge that offends every political and religious conviction that I hold dear," he continued. "It is the charge that this administration wishes to lead this country into war.

"This charge is cantrary to every fact, every purpose of the past eight years. Throughout these years my every act and every thought has been directed to the end of preserving the peace of the world, and more particularly, the peace of the United States—the peaces of the western hemisphere.

"As I saw the war coming, I used every ounce of the prestige of the office of president of the United States to prevent its onset.

"When war came, I used every ounce of the presitge of the office to prevent its spread to other nations. When that effort failed, I called upon Congress, and I called upon the nation, to build the strong defense that would be our best guarantee of peace and security in this hemisphere.

"To Republicans and Democrats, to every man, woman and child in the nation I say—your president and your great secretary of state are following the road to peace."

Carol, Lupescu Under Arrest in Seville, Spain

Both May Go Back to Rumania To Face Serious Charges

SEVILLE, Spain, Oct. 23. (AP)—Deposed King Carol and his buxom woman friend, Magda Lupescu, were under a polite form of arrest today—still pursued by the unsatisfied enmity that had driven them from Rumania only last month and now threatens to break up at last their long, determined association.

Under guard with them in their hotel here was one of the most faithful of all the king's men, pale, thin Ernest Urdareanu, who was minister of the palace in the days before the pro-Nazi Rumanian Iron Guard hauled Carol from an unhappy throne last Sept. 6.

Ahead of them was the prospect that Urdareanu and Madame Lupescu—although probably not Carol himself—would be returned to Rumania to face trial at the hands of the Iron Guardists, who have accused the little palace politician and Carol's red-haired feminine associate of various crimes against the state.

All Three Arrested

All three — Carol, Madame Lupescu, Urdareanu — were taken into custody yesterday.

The story of this interruption of exile, as it emerged during the day, was this:

Yesterday, a police officer appeared at the hotel and told Carol, Lupescu and Urdareanu that their movements were no longer free.

Urdareanu, raising his hands, cried out:

"They'll kill me if we are sent back to Rumania. How is extradition possible?"

Then, half-hysterical, he said:

"His majesty should hear about this."

Visit King's Suite

The strange procesison — the policeman, Madame Lupescu, the trembling Urdareanu—went then to the king's suite to announce the bad news.

"Who, pray, gave you those orders?" Carol demanded of the officers.

"My superiors."

"And who are your superiors?"

There was no answer.

The inference was allowed to emerge, although not officially, that Carol himself would not be sent back since some quarters felt that what he had done in Rumania had been under the influence of Lupescu and Urdareanu.

But the former monarch would be likely to insist upon going back if Madame Lupescu had to go, a member of the Carol party said.

Gets Three Years for Failure To Register

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23 (AP) — Michael John Caffie, 29, charged with failing to register here under the selective service act on Oct. 16, was sentenced today by Federal Judge Adrian J. Caillouet to serve three years in prison.

Japan Said To Have Inserted an "Escape" Clause in 3-Power Pact

By CLARK LEE

SHANGHAI, Oct. 24 (Thursday) (AP) — The recently-signed Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance contains a secret "escape" clause which under certain circumstances would give Japan the right to refuse to fight any nation "attacking" Italy or Germany, advices from usually well-informed Tokyo sources reported today.

The enforcement of the military clause in the treaty depends entirely on the Soviet Russian position, these sources said.

Unless Japan can obtain what she considers iron-clad assurances of Soviet neutrality in the far east, these informants state, she will resort to the escape clause to avoid entering the war as an ally of Italy or Germany if they are attacked.

In this connection, however, it was pointed out that one of the many German selling points in negotiating the alliance was the assurance to Japan that Berlin would guarantee to prevent Russia moving in on Japan's Asiatic continental interests if Japan became involved in a war with the United States or Britain or both.

Another of the "certain circumstances" enabling Japan to escape would arise, these sources said, if the United States gave clear indications of relaxing her recently-strengthened far-eastern policy and turned her attention chiefly toward Europe.

It was understood that in such case it would be left entirely within the judgment of Japan to decide whether such assurances or indications by the United States were

Kennedy Believed Coming Home To Campaign against Roosevelt

Ambassador To Great Britain Reported Angry over Interference

RESENTS TREATMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — The New York Post says that Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, who is now enroute home by Clipper, has informed President Roosevelt that under no circumstances will he return to his post and that he intends to make public the reasons for his decision.

His action, the article continues, is due to what he considered persistent disregard for his views by the president—and to a conviction that President Roosevelt's promises of aid to Great Britain have not been fulfilled.

The ambassador, the Post states, has resented the sending to Great Britain of special army and navy missions and of special envoys—such as Col. William Donovan—to deal with special phases of Anglo-American affairs.

Petain Government on the Way Out, Well Informed Sources Tell A. P.

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ JR.

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 23 (AP)—The French government of Marshal Philippe Petain is on the way out, well-informed sources reported tonight, in favor of a regime headed by Vice-Premier Pierre Laval and favoring close cooperation in general, and by the French fleet in particular, with Germany and Italy in the war against Britain.

Official France was reported by these informants to be a house violently divided against itself over the question, with Laval supported by Naval Minister Jean Darlan and a majority of the navy command.

On the opposing side were said to be Chief of State Petain himself, General Maxime Weygand, former generalissimo of the French army, General Charles Huntzinger, one of the signers of the armistice with Germany and now commander of the French army, and a majority of the cabinet.

More Territory for Nazis

Laval's main argument for striking the best possible bargain with the Axis for cooperation with it in establishing its "new European order" was understood to be that if the Vichy government rejected the proposal, even the unoccupied zone of France might fall under German occupation.

If the Axis considers French Mediterranean and African bases essential in the war against the British, Hitler and Mussolini can take them by force, supporters of the swarthy vice-premier told their colleagues, according to reports from Vichy.

Laval was pressing his negotiations with German officials in Paris, where, it was reported here,

German Bombers Subject London To Night Attack

But It Is of Slight Duration and Damage Is Not Heavy

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 24 (Thursday) (AP)—German warplanes made a quick, momentarily heavy stab at London last night, but it tapered off before midnight into the lightest attack of the last seventeen nights.

The outer defenses, and a heavy rain over the channel, appeared to have turned back the main Nazi thrusts.

Early today the sound of exploding bombs could be heard in the city, but from afar, and the flashes of the anti-aircraft guns rose over the distant horizon.

This period of relative quiet was in sharp contrast to the early evening when buildings shuddered for a time under the impact of frequent bombs.

The attack succeeded a day and night of a comparative lull, in which, however, one direct hit last night demolished part of a department store turned into an air raid shelter and took an estimated toll of twenty-five lives.

Ruins Take Fire

Eleven dead had been taken from the ruined part of the building, but altogether twenty-five persons were believed to have been trapped when an oil bomb and a broken gas main combined to sweep the ruins in flame.

Most of the dead were employes who had lost their homes in other bombings.

Despite the disaster the store opened up for business in an undamaged section of the building.

London had but one alarm during the day, and it lasted only a few minutes without any German planes having reached the city. Stray German planes also were reported during the day over western England.

Casualties Are Few

The government said a "very small" number of casualties and only slight damage resulted.

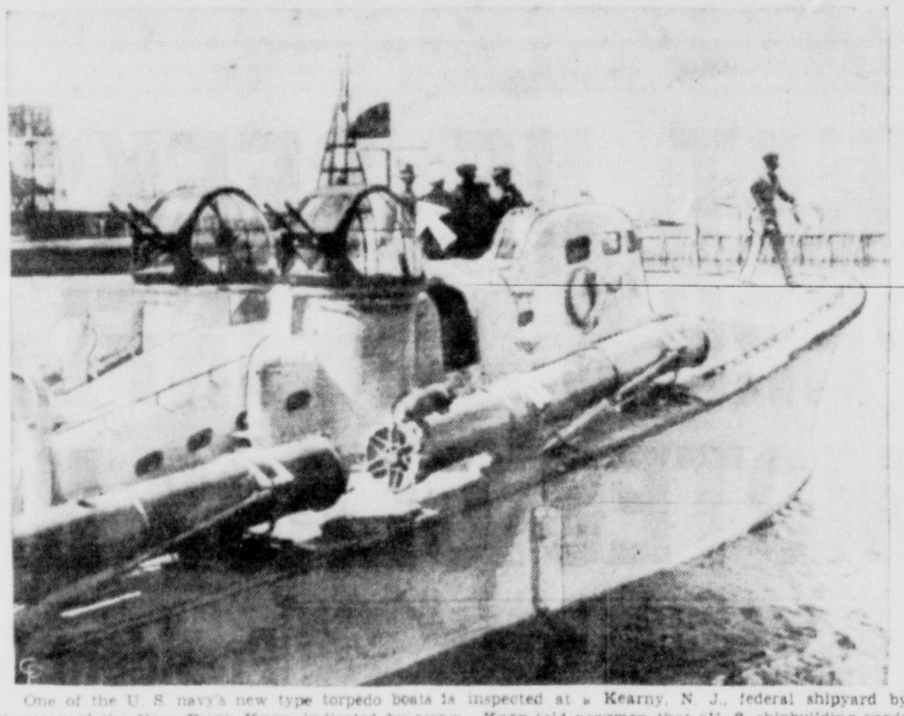

The same thick fog, made blacker by smoke pouring from London's chimney pots, which reduced London's Tuesday night raids to mere sporadic affairs, apparently kept most of the German Luftwaffe earthbound.

Four persons were killed in London last night however, and in one midland town the Germans made a two-hour raid with some casualities.

Meanwhile, to relieve London's growing transportation problem as a result of weeks of bombing, the ministry of transport ordered 2,000 busses brought in from provincial cities.

Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill tramped over Scottish moorlands inspecting defenses prepared by Scottish and Polish troops.

ter trial and conviction. NLRB and RFC have therefore secretly undertaken to impose penalties upon American citizens over and above those prescribed by Congress.

This is the essence of tyranny. It is government by executive decree. It is not only contemptible; it is cowardly because it was done secretly.

Let us restate the question: Here is the Jones Company which employs labor. Its business comes within the new definition of interstate commerce and is therefore under the jurisdiction of NLRB. In addition it needs money to expand its operations and employ more men. Congress has authorized it to apply to RFC for a loan.

The application is made, the loan granted, and the amount is to be disbursed to the Jones Company from time to time. Relying upon the granting of the loan, the Jones Company extends its operations and makes commitments for raw materials and other expenditures.

At that moment someone whispers to NLRB that the Jones Company has violated the Wagner act. There is no proof that it has done so. There has been no hearing, no trial and perhaps not even a complaint has been filed by any responsible person. In this situation NLRB sends notice to RFC. RFC then cuts off Jones Company's credit.

It can readily be seen that in many, if not most cases, the cutting off of credit is a much more severe penalty than the fine prescribed by Congress, if, in fact, a violation has taken place.

It threatens the company with financial ruin. Faced with ruin by this species of bureaucratic despotism, the Jones Company may confess that it is guilty, however innocent it may be.

While he sleeps the giant Gulliver of American free enterprise is being bound hand and foot by the Lilliputians of government, who singly and recognized, could be brushed aside like flies.

Only recently Mr. Roosevelt, by executive order, and over the protests of five great farm organizations, transferred the Farm Credit Administration and its billions of credit facilities, to the Secretary of agriculture.

This removed the FCA from its status as an independent cooperative credit agency, in large part owned and operated by farmers, to what many think will now be a political weapon for control and votes. If NLRB is a sample, the fears are amply justified.

The gradual enslavement of our enterprise to the Wall Street of Washington will proceed along Nazi lines, although we are not supposed to know it.

"During the past four years private banks have declined in importance as a source of credit." (Economic Development of Germany Under National Socialism.) Have they not equally in the United States? Insurance companies and banks are finding it difficult to make loans in competition with government lending.

Of the latter, Secretary Morgenthau reported to the Senate in February, 1940 that thirty-one government agencies have loaned nearly $25,000,000,000, and that more than $800,000,000 of real estate has been taken over.

The Baltimore Sun says that federal agencies "own in part and control in part" more than 2,000 corporations having assets of $4,000,000,000, and have a degree of control, through regulation, loans, subsidies and the fear of "getting in wrong" of more than 23,000 corporations with assets of $70,000,000,000!

But so silently has this Nazification of America gone on that there are many good and patriotic people who think "you are seeing things under the bed" if you tell them we are on the German road. Is life insurance next?—Copyright, 1940, by Samuel B. Pettengill.

New Bridge, New Road For Christmas Presents

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Given any sort of "break," the state roads commission believes it will be able to give the state a new toll bridge and a new high-speed highway as Christmas presents.

Commission Chairman Ezra B. Whitman disclosed today that progress reports from the Morgantown toll bridge across the Potomac river and contractors on the new Philadelphia road represented "the best news we've had in a long time."

Steel construction on the bridge was finished today, he said, and the roadway over the span is about half done. The Virginia approach has been completed and, despite unexpected difficulties with bad fill, the Maryland approach should be ready in time, Whitman added.

If the weather is good and other conditions remain satisfactory, he asserted, the bridge may be ready to open by Dec. 1.

A stretch of about thirteen miles along the New Philadelphia road north of Perryville must be finished before the highway can be used from Baltimore to the Delaware line. If all goes well, Whitman said, the commission hopes to have one lane open all the way by Dec. 1.

One lane probably will be opened for a distance of about three miles next week, from the end of the present completed dual highway to a point about three miles from the Aiken road. Use of this lane will obviate the detour now required via the Aiken road and the old Philadelphia road.

Moser Recommends Seven Paroles

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—Paroles were recommended for seven of seventy-six prisoners today by Parole Director Herman M. Moser.

Those recommended were:

William Shaffer, serving five years for incest in Baltimore county in 1937.

Edward Enos, serving eighteen months for escaping from the Maryland Training School for Boys this year.

Thomas Dore, sentenced to four years for burglarizing Baltimore homes in 1939.

Robert Cheeks, negro, serving eighteen months on an assault to murder charge placed in Baltimore after a street fight this year.

Roosevelt Williams, sentenced to one year for assault in Montgomery county as the result of a fight over a woman.

Virgil Brown, negro, serving three years for breaking into Baltimore county homes and stealing chickens.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Prospects that France will re-enter the war as an ally of her German-Italian conquerors have been dimmed by an authoritative disavowal from Vichy. Therefore the Hitler-Laval conference loses significance in that respect; but it gains importance for Britain in another.

There remains a possibility that Hitler is bidding for use of French warcraft and naval bases in the Mediterranean against Britain. If Germany is proffering peace table concessions to France for that purpose, it would decisively indicate that Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini are now doubtful of defeating Britain by air power alone. It would be an Axis confession that British sea power still is the dominant factor in the war, east or west.

Unless some such deal is in the making, neither the Hitler-Laval nor the reported Hitler-Franco conferences can greatly disturb London. If they were merely to implement the "new order" in Europe by political understandings, London can forget them and get on with the war. The British fleet has a ponderous veto power to exercise.

If those meetings had a military objective in view, however, it must be ways and means of checkmating British sea power in the Mediterranean. There is ample evidence that whatever plans for an Axis drive eastward this winter were hatched at Brenner Pass nearly three weeks ago are encountering serious obstacles, of which the most formidable is the British Mediterranean fleet.

The plain fact, vouched for by American and other neutral press observers permitted to sail on British war vessels seeking contacts with the Italian fleet, is that the British continue to use the Mediterranean and the Red Sea almost at will.

Hitler's personal pilgrimage to France and Spain is rather meaningless unless it had immediate military objectives. Obtaining use of French war craft and inducing Spain to facilitate an attack on Gibraltar are about the only military motives that would warrant Hitler's personal appearance on the scene so far from home. And if that was his mission, it only strengthens the conclusion that Britain's sea power is the big stumbling block in the Axis pathway, wherever its leaders turn.

Overtime Wages for Fort Meade Workers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The war department agreed today to payment of overtime wages to workmen on an $8,000,000 construction project settling labor disputes at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland.

The agreement, announced by the war department after a conference between H. W. Blumenberg, representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL) and L. E. Brigham of the department's labor relations divisions, provided:

"Overtime in accordance with local practice will be paid on projects for all work in excess of eight hours in any one day, 40 hours in any one week, and all work on Saturdays and Sundays, in accordance with local custom."

Blumenberg said approximately 250 workmen on the Maryland barracks construction projects had been ordered to halt work last Friday after working two week-ends for regular wages. He sent the men back to work Monday on the barracks designed to house 25,000 national guardsmen from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Blumenberg, after the conference reported "all our demands were conceded" and said he would visit the fort tomorrow morning to advise the workers of the agreement and withdraw instructions under which he had forbidden them to work after midnight next Friday.

Johnson Gets Jail Sentence and Fine

CHICAGO, Oct. 23, (AP)—William R. Johnson, alleged big shot of Chicago's organized gambling, was sentenced in Federal court today to five years' imprisonment and was fined $10,000 for evading $1,887,864 in taxes on his 1936-1939 income.

Judge John P. Barnes earlier denied Johnson and five co-defendants a new trial.

A stay of execution until Oct. 30 was granted all defendants.

The other penalties imposed were William P. Kelly, four years' imprisonment and $8,000 fine; Jack Sommers, four years and $8,000; John M. Flanagan, four years and $8,000; James A. Hartigan, three years and $6,000, and Stuart Brown, two years and $4,000. They were convicted of aiding Johnson in the evasion.

Fight Looms over Fireworks Bill

Opponents Denied Another Hearing by Legislative Council

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—In a move which may cause plenty of "fireworks" at the approaching session of the general assembly, the legislative council today literally shut legislative doors in the faces of opponents of a prohibitory fireworks bill.

Because the bill's opponents came unprepared for a hearing on the fireworks question today and asked for a time extension, the council, after skirmishes among its members, voted against allowing the opponents another hearing.

During the debate, Senator Philip Dorsey, Jr., (D-St. Mary's), said tactics used by council members favoring the prohibitory measure may result in the "driving away" of votes for the bill.

May Change Minds

Immediately after the session, other council members in favor of allowing the time extension said they may change their minds and vote against a prohibitory bill.

Opponents of the measure in September requested a hearing and council members postponed taking action on a subcommittee report favoring enactment of the subcommittee's bill outlawing fireworks in Maryland. Dr. Horace Flack, council secretary, said he notified opponents of the measure Oct. 18 of the hearing today.

Edward Rollins, attorney for Fireworks, Inc., of Cecil county, opponents of the prohibitory measure, asked to be given until Nov. 6 in which to present a regulatory fireworks bill.

John Avirett, II, attorney for the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness, which favors the prohibitory bill, said opponents of the subcommittee's bill were using the same dilatory tactics they used at the last legislative session.

Senator A. Earl Shipley (R-Carroll), chairman of the council's fireworks subcommittee, then made a motion that Rollins' request be denied.

Replies to Opponents

Senator Emanuel Gorfine (D-Baltimore City), seconded the motion, asserting that the opponents knew in September they would be given a hearing and had plenty of time in which to prepare a regulatory bill and otherwise present their side of the question today.

A proposal by Senator Dudley G. Roe (D-Queen Anne's), that the council go into executive session and debate the matter was lost by a 9 to 5 vote.

An amendment offered by Delegate John S. White (D-Prince George's), to give opponents one more week to present their case, was defeated, 8-6.

Without a roll call, Senator Shipley's motion denying opponents more time was carried. Senator Shipley said he would delay asking the council to approve his subcommittee's report.

Those who voted against the time extension said the bill's opponents still would have the opportunity of presenting their regulatory bill and arguing it before a committee of the General Assembly.

U. S. To Have Air Base on Newfoundland

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Secretary Knox said today agreement had been reached with Great Britain and Canada on the location of an army-navy naval and air base on the southern shore of Newfoundland.

Without giving the exact location, Knox told his press conference that the chief base would be located at one point and a flying field some distance away.

A survey crew already is at St. John, Newfoundland, making preparations to start work on the first of the string of new bases in the Atlantic acquired from Britain.

No Doles Paid in Charleston on Big Projects, Mayor Dawson Says

LOGAN, W. Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—Mayor D. Boone Dawson of Charleston said in a gubernatorial campaign address tonight that "there were no doles on any of the projects completed in Charleston" during his terms as mayor.

"Every man worked for his wages which, by the way, were prevailing wages and not pittances," asserted the Republican nominee, "and a $10,000,000 building program was completed in good faith by both the workers and the city."

Foreign Oil Used

Thomas B. Sweeney, Republican candidate for U. S. Senate, speaking with Dawson for the third successive rally, declared that enough fuel oil was imported from Venezuela "to displace 2,000,000 tons of coal during the first five months of this year."

Sweeney, frequent critic of reciprocal trade policies of the Roosevelt administration, added:

"If the workers of West Virginia had been given these wages instead of the underpaid Venezuela workers, thousands of miners would have been given employment and more hours of work."

Dawson recalled that he worked as a young man in the Logan coalfields, saying:

"I am not unmindful of the problems of the working man. I knew your problems when I worked with you here and I know your problems today.

"The only dealings that I have had with workers in the capacity of employer has been as mayor of the city of Charleston, where, during the past five years, we have worked thousands of men on our improvement and expansion program of public works.

No Doles to Workers

"These men were employed by the city of Charleston or their subcontractors at a time when they needed employment badly. But let me tell you that none of our projects were relief projects. There were no doles on any of the projects completed in Charleston. Every man worked for his wages x x x. Not in one single instance was there ever any misunderstanding or friction between employer and employe on that job.

"I believe that it is the duty of every governing executive to stand for a policy that will create harmony, peace and good relations between labor and capital."

Dawson will campaign in Fayette county tomorrow, while Sweeney will speak in Huntington.

2 Air Squadrons Ordered to Philippines

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Transfer of two air corps squadrons to the Philippine islands was announced today by the war department.

Willkie To Reply To Roosevelt Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Wendell Willkie said tonight he would reply to President Roosevelt's Philadelphia address in a speech to be broadcast over the NBC Red network from Erie, Pa., from 12 noon to 12:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow Thursday).

Hitler Confers With Franco on Future of War

Entrance of Spain on Axis Side Held Likely at Early Date

By JOHN P. MCKNIGHT

MADRID, Oct. 23 (AP)—Adolf Hitler met Generalissimo Francisco Franco in a 2½-hour conference on the Hispano-French border this afternoon. Their foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Ramon Serrano Suner, also were there.

They expected to meet again tonight and tomorrow as well.

Hitler and Franco put their heads together in an official railway car belonging to the Spanish public works department on the border between Hendaye and Irun.

The first talk began at 4:15 p. m., and ended at 6:45 p. m. (10:15 a. m. and 12:45 p. m. EST)

An official communique has been expected for many hours, but the prospects now are it will not be available before the early morning hours, at least.

The meeting was hidden in secrecy—as much secrecy, anyway, as is possible in Spain.

This noon only a few thousand people in Madrid knew about it, and in the cafes they talked about nothing else.

Foreign correspondents, however, were able to send out nothing direct from Spain until the German radio announced in a broadcast heard here that the meeting had taken place.

Franco had gone to San Sebastion, near the meeting place, yesterday and had waited there until Serrano Suner arrived at 2 p. m. this afternoon.

Then the two proceeded to the French frontier, where they met Hitler and von Ribbentrop.

Moley Compares Two Terms under The New Dealers

First Enacted Reforms, Second Sought Power, He Declares

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Raymond Moley, former advisor to the New Deal, said tonight that the administrations "drive for power" could be described in four words: "must," "pack," "purge" and "perpetuate."

At a "no-third-term-day rally in Manhattan center which Republican nominee Wendell L. Willkie was also to address—the "key rally of many throughout the country—Moley asserted that virtually all of the social reforms of the New Deal were enacted during the first term.

"The second term was marked by a continuous effort to increase executive authority, he said. "Two terms—the first was for the people, the second was for power.

Four examples, he said, described "the pattern of that drive for power.

"First the order of the day was 'must,'" he said. "We all remember those 'must' bills. The second command was 'pack.' You remember that attack upon the Supreme Court. The third was an order to the people. They were told 'purge' members of Congress. And now we are commanded to 'perpetuate.'"

The four words, he declared, were "signs that the danger of personal power never passes. They are the four horsemen of autocracy."

"New Flying Fortress" Now Being Tested

DAYTON, O., Oct. 23 (AP)—A "new flying fortress" and an improved type observation plane are being put through their paces by the army at Wright field here.

The war department in Washington described the flying fortress as like others in that series but with flat gun turrets instead of "blisters" as on earlier models.

Known as the B-17C, the all-metal monoplane develops slightly more power from its supercharged engines than sister ships, without increasing the twenty - two - ton weight of such craft, the department said.

The two-place observation plane, known as the Stinson 0-49, is especially designed for use with infantry and artillery and is unarmed. Wings are metal but the body of steel tube construction covered with fabric. The department said it was the first of a large number of such craft from the Stinson aircraft division of the Aviation Manufacturing Co., Nashville, Tenn., which has a $2,000,000 government contract.

Some Alleged Profiteering Demanding an Investigation

THIS NEWSPAPER, as well as other newspapers, recently commented upon the ineptness of the remark made by Capt. Elliott Roosevelt, specially privileged son of the president, about "sacrificing" some of his means by taking a swivel-chair job exempting him from the draft. The remarks had to do with how the young fellow got the stuff.

Excerpts from a speech by Representative Schafer, of Wisconsin, as recorded in The Congressional Record of September 25, page 19,082, give some further light on that subject.

"On November 16, 1933," Representative Schafer is quoted as having said, "Mr. Elliott Roosevelt entered into an agreement with Mr. Anthony Fokker, aviation expert, to sell the Russian government fifty Douglas military airplanes of Lockheed make at an expected price to allow a commission of $500,000 for Mr. Fokker and $500,000 for Mr. Elliott Roosevelt. I hold in my hand a twelve-page affidavit signed by Mr. Fokker on the 18th of September, 1935, as presented to the special Senate committee investigating the munitions industry in the year 1935.

"In this affidavit Mr. Fokker reveals the entire deal with Mr. Elliott Roosevelt and identifies the corroborating exhibited evidence. In this affidavit Mr. Fokker reveals that this agreement which he signed with Mr. Elliott Roosevelt was a special agreement for the sale of these fifty Douglas military planes to Russia. In explaining why he had signed an agreement for such a large commission for Mr. Elliott Roosevelt and himself Mr. Fokker states in this affidavit that 'he had thought the commissions notably excessive, but that he had been persuaded by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Roosevelt's associate, Mr. Stratton, that Mr. Roosevelt had enough influence with the Export-Import Bank and the Russian Purchasing Commission, then in the country, to swing the deal at that excessive price.'

"Mr. Speaker, it was not talent but pure, unmitigated gall for Mr. Elliott Roosevelt, the then twenty-three-year-old son of the president of the United States, to enter into an agreement under which he was to receive a $500,000 commission on the sale of fifty military airplanes to the Russian government because he claimed to have enough influence on the federal government Export-Import Bank, whose members were appointed by his father, so that the bank would furnish American taxpayers' money to the Russian government to be used to purchase the planes in question.

"Mr. Speaker, this is the same Mr. Elliott Roosevelt who came to Washington on Sept. 23, 1940, and applied direct to Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, for a commission in the United States Army and received a captain's commission on Sept. 24, 1940, with a swivel-chair assignment at Wright Field, Ohio, because of his special talents."

It seems queer that nothing has been done about this for, if what Representative Schafer is quoted as charging has any basis of fact, it involves a reprehensible instance of profiteering of the worst kind. Certainly the charge should be investigated and if found to be true something should be done about it. Perhaps, if nothing is done now, something will be done about it if the Roosevelt money-makers are given a ticket of leave November 5. The report as given, as Gen. Johnson would say, stinks unto high heaven.

A Worthy Candidate For Representative

WALTER P. JOHNSON, Republican nominee for Sixth district United States representative, is visiting Allegany county again this week. He will meet as many of the voters as he possibly can, and will speak to them over the radio; but for the benefit of those who may not be able to see him, and who are not familiar with his career, some information about him is here given.

Born in 1887, the Republican nominee was educated in the public schools of California. He joined the Washington Baseball Club of the American League in 1907 and became its manager in 1929. In 1933 he became manager of the Cleveland club. During his long and successful career in baseball, Johnson became affectionately known to thousands of admirers as "The Big Train."

Johnson lived at Alta Vista, this state, until his retirement from active baseball work, when he moved to Germantown, Montgomery county, where he has since resided, managing a large farm near that town and looking after other business interests in Montgomery county and elsewhere.

The nominee is not without experience in public affairs. He first ran for office in his home county in 1936 and was elected county commissioner by a majority of 2,272 votes, while the congressional nominee on the opposition ticket carried the county by nearly 7,000. That tremendous swing in a Democratic county was a real tribute to a fine man and a deserving candidate.

For twenty years, Walter Johnson was not only a great baseball player, but typified the finest type of American citizen. He gave his best against great odds, and never let anyone feel that he was "lying down" because a decision went against him. Well known and popular, he has been held up to American youth as an outstanding example of an honest, clean-living man.

Johnson is a sound thinker, a man of mature judgment and, what is a most needed quality in public representatives today, he possesses a rugged and stalwart determination. The firm mouth and jaw of his honest face give ample evidence of that splendid characteristic. The man is one who can be depended upon to serve his people and his party with the utmost fidelity and with the dogged persistence that marked his famous career in baseball.

In view of all these things, it is obvious that Walter Johnson is the type of man this congressional district needs to represent it in the national House of Representatives. He can be depended upon not only to give impressive force to that representation, but also to be on the job all the time and make the sentiment of the district known in national affairs, which, unfortunately, is something that cannot be said of the district's present representation.

One Glaring Example of New Deal Inefficiency

THE INEFFICIENCY AND BUREAUCRATIC COSTLINESS of the New Deal is impressed by a recollection just brought forth about the famous—or infamous—processing law passed by Congress under the whiplash of the New Deal and later outlawed by the federal supreme court.

That was the law, administered by Henry Wallace, which put a tax on every farm product that was processed in any way, shape, form or fashion. If a farmer made a pound of sausage at butchering time and sold it, the "fabricated" product carried a "process tax."

After the law was kicked out of court, Congress set up a board of review to refund the millions that Wallace had collected. That board, loaded up like many others with political appointees, has been saddled upon the taxpayer's back since 1936.

In four long years of New Deal inefficiency, that board has actually refunded just $12,968 to taxpayers; but it has cost the taxpayers of the country more than $800,000 to maintain the board, its offices, traveling expenses and other costs.

How long would any business man last if he had to spend $800,000 in "expenses" to pay back $12,968 in overcharges?

Firms that were made to pay the processing tax, which was "impounded," have had need for the money they put up. They can't get it. Some of them are reported about ready to go into bankruptcy. But the New Deal won't give back the money which the supreme court said it had no right to collect.

That board has dismissed, without even a hearing, 186 claims involving hundreds of thousands of dollars. During its four years on the pay roll, the board members have heard only nineteen cases on their merits, and these were minor ones. The very firms that many farmers of this Tri-state region sell to, directly and indirectly, are hard hit by the inefficiency of this board. Eventually the farmers themselves may be the losers. They have a real stake in all this "impounded" money. It is time for them to get it out—away past time—but they can do it by helping elect Wendell L. Willkie president in November.

Old Stuff Made New For the Campaign

TRYING TO SMEAR the candidate doesn't take in all the low-downs of the political pirates.

Now they are trying to discredit one of the leading industrials—the great Bethlehem Steel Company. The attorney general of the United States has a case against the company pending before the federal supreme court charging that it made "unconscionable profits."

When? Why away back in the World war period, a quarter of a century ago. One may well wonder why all that delay if there was anything to litigate over. The time lapse may have been deemed sufficient to throw everything but the charge over after the election.

Certainly it cannot be regarded as a wonderful scheme to help the national defense program. It merely represents a scarcity of dirt to throw into the campaign.

The first thing we know some of these fellows will be reaching back into the Civil war for more mud.

Turkey favors Russian alliance—news headline. Our favorite alliance for turkey is with dressing and cranberry sauce.

My Friend Knows

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I meet a friend nearly every day as we are going home and nearly always I learn something from him. . . . I tell him things from books, he tells me things from lives.

Marshall Maslin

I talk about the weather and how cold it was last night, for instance. He remembers a little boy who was lost in Montana and the searchers found him huddled for warmth in the carcass of a cow the coyotes had been "working over."

I've read something about how the silver fox is raised for the trade in the north woods. I tell him that they don't need to sink a wire fence into the ground to keep the foxes from getting out of their enclosure. Instead they merely lay a three-foot section flat on the earth at the base of the fence and no fox ever thinks of backing up and digging all the way under. . . . My friend remembers seven Englishmen who came into his part of the country and raised rabbits and silver fox. They made so much money they all went back to England to be gentlemen farmers.

I tell him something I've read about the comparative intelligence of dogs and cats and horses and cows. . . . He's lived with all of them and he tells me about a dog his family had—half shepherd and half coyote. You could tell that dog to go up to the pasture and bring in the saddle horses or the work horses and he'd get the right horses every time. If you ordered the milk cows brought in, he'd do that. Or if you named one particular cow, he'd get her.

So, whenever we meet the conversation gets around to something that I know second hand and he knows from having lived it. It just happens that way. He doesn't snort at my book knowledge. I respect his life-knowledge.

Thinking of him I realize that the longer I live the more deeply I respect the facts and the wisdom that come out of intelligently perceived experience . . . and the more I respect those men and women who have lived deeply and sensitively and know what they know.

Sometimes it seems to me they are the ONLY ones who do know what it's all about. And always they admit their ignorance more quickly than they display their knowledge.

Democratic Party Is One of Fear, Miss Boothe Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 23 — I think there is a new voice among political commentators in our country. It has not been silent in other fields. Clare Boothe has made herself felt importantly in drama, literature and as a publicist. Only in her indignation about the war hysteria of recent political outbursts has she taken to the hustings. She hasn't just taken to them. She has taken them.

Her book, "Europe in Spring," is the most revealing on the fall of France. It wasn't political. It was poignant, but the terrible experiences from which it was derived didn't suggest to the poised Miss Boothe that she drag her own country unnecessarily into that bloody shambles. When she got back to this country, to find that another formost American woman writer of heart and mind, Miss Dorothy Thompson, had completely blown up emotionally and, after castigating Mr. Roosevelt for seven years came out for him as a great leader into war, Miss Boothe began analyzing that psychology.

Miss Boothe Indignant

She showed from her correspondence in France that the bloodthirsty, breast-beating Boadicea, Miss Thompson, had actually wangled permission from a French artillery battery to fire three shells at the Germans. Miss Boothe was indignant. By all the laws of war, Miss Thompson was a non-belligerent, an American, a sniper not in uniform—perfectly protected against reprisal. If anyone was killed, it was murder, no less—such a deed as the intellectual Dorothy would never dream of in her normal mind.

That roused Miss Boothe to make one of the most effective speeches yet delivered on our war hysteria. With no personal feeling whatever, she used this incident as an example of the mass madness into which we are being whipped. I can only quote a very small compressed fraction.

Victim of Disease

"Gradually she (Miss Thompson) became a victim of that emotional disease called 'acute fear.'

"Fear, a doctor will tell you is an emotional and not a intellectual reaction. Fear distills adrenalin into the blood. The victim sweats, her breath comes fast, her nostrils dilate, her pulse races, her breasts heave. She begins to babble. The blood leaves her head and — her brain ceases to function normally.

"So, as events became more calamitious abroad, one saw Miss Thompson slip farther and farther into the icy grip of panic fear. Any good psychologist could have predicted that when she reached the final stages of hysteria she must come out for Roosevelt.

Other Victims

"Now here is a strange thing we all have observed; how many, many voters for Roosevelt are victims of this fear. We see everywhere people who are afraid they may be taken off relief, people who are afraid they will be put on relief, people who are afraid freely to cast a vote because they of their relatives will be hounded by a political boss out of a job, people who are afraid for racial reasons, people who are afraid we won't get into the war in time, people who are afraid (like the French and the English were until after the invasion) to swap horses in midstream, people who are afraid Hitler will be less afraid of Willkie than he is of Roosevelt (it's difficult, by the way, to imagine how Hitler could be!), and people who are afraid 'that Democracy is finished anyway—so let's start going Socialist now.' It was this fear 'that Democracy is finished anyway' which sapped the will of the French people and hastened their surrender.

Party of Fear

"Now the Democratic party may or may not be the party of war. But it certainly is the party of fear. What unites us, Independents, Republicans and Democrats, is that we are the party of courage. We are a true American breed. Our founders and forefathers and our immigrant parents felt equal to the problems of the past and solved them with courage. We citizens, new and old, also feel equal to the problems of the present. We also have the courage to solve them, because we have the faith Americans have always had in America's future."

After a devastating application of this idea, she climaxed by recalling: "Mr. Roosevelt on taking office in 1933 is quoted as having said, 'I shall either be America's greatest president—or its last.' Perhaps he should have said, 'its greatest and its last.'" — Distributed by United States Features Syndicate, Inc.

Celebrated Author Gives His Reasons For Supporting Willkie for President

By CHARLES G. NORRIS

I'm voting for Wendell Willkie next month because, when I take a good square look at the two candidates, it seems to me that the advantage is overwhelmingly on the Willkie side of the ledger.

The New Dealers themselves admit that they haven't made a success of anything. Unemployment is just about where it was. Business is much more seriously stagnated than it ever has been. Money has been wasted in every direction, offices have been multiplied, committees have elbowed committees out of the way and in turn been crowded to the wall themselves, to no effect. Experiment and theory and dream have controlled Washington. The men in power there are not men of whom America knows anything—are not men Americans have elected to office.

Wendell Willkie has never made a failure of anything that he ever undertook.

Dictators' Final Recourse

Roosevelt says himself that he is tired, that he does not want the office of president a third term. After a dozen other enterprises and failures that singularly suggest the proceedings of dictators overseas, he is being driven to the dictators' final recourse,—i. e., he is plunging the country into war scare and war talk and war waste, he is silencing the people with the last great invincible argument, War ends criticism of government. War keeps troublesome women busy. War excuses money waste. Nobody asks embarrassing questions in war.

Wendell Willkie proposes to take the people into his confidence; proposes to face the staggering national indebtedness with the same intelligence that he would face a personal indebtedness; proposes to set wheels turning again, to start the smoke moving from a thousand factory chimneys, to let us know—and how we have wanted to know!—how we can help and what's to be done.

Perfect Confidence Felt

He seems to be the man of the hour. Thousands—hundreds of thousands of Americans are turning to him with perfect confidence that he will bring his characteristic energy, intelligence, — yes, and that broad smile of his and that heartening laugh, to the national problems and solve them.

When he says that he won't send American boys over-seas to fight Europe's wars, I believe him. On his record there is no coyness, no half-promises, no broken word. He is not going to tell us one thing today and tomorrow tell us its exact opposite because he has decided, in secret, that a change of plan is good for us.

He isn't going to surround himself with personal friends who have had no training in statesmanship and are full of impractical schemes.

He isn't going to nurse a million of us along on the dole. Willkie likes Americans better on their feet than on their knees.

He isn't going to import foreign fears, and frighten us with imaginary dangers that are political policies in disguise.

Will Give Back America

But he WILL give us back America. The America that isn't afraid to look any nation in the eye. The America that has survived many depressions and risen from each one stronger and greater. The America that holds to certain traditions regarding the Supreme Court, the third term, the right of uncontrolled choice in selecting public servants.

So I look at the two men and the two records and I say Willkie. Willkie on all counts. There's no doubt in my mind about it. One man has involved us in utter confusion, distrust, depression, failure. The other man sees ahead a saner and safer and happier America.

Willkie's America for me.

Expensive Nonsense

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney, Republican candidate for the United States senate, who paid $25 the other day for a can of American corned beef, recently delivered a special message to West Virginia farmers and farmers everywhere. AAA checks to this state's farmers may have created the illusion that they were getting something for nothing but, as Senator Sweeney pointed out, West Virginia receives less of those funds than any other state, except Rhode Island. In return, the average farmer in this state owes $1,000 as his share of the national debt.

Exploding the myth of getting something for nothing from the government, Senator Sweeney asked the farmers what happens when they, in return for the AAA checks, reduce their crops. The answer is, said the Republican candidate, that two things happen. First, the government spends many times as many millions in other parts of the country reclaiming waste land and increasing the productivity of poor land so that more crops can be raised—crops for which the West Virginia farmer has been paid not to raise.

Next, tariffs are lowered on foreign agricultural products so that the American farmer is thrown into open competition with the farmers of nearly every other country in the world. The result is that the markets become flooded with cheaper foreign agricultural products and prices cannot go up to the levels of the ten-year average before the present administration. Meanwhile, the federal government creates illusions by maintaining the gentle rain of farm subsidy checks.

Farmers in this and other states cannot approve of such deceptive, illogical policies once they understand them. The overwhelming majority of farmers desire only to be allowed to produce their crops and obtain a fair market price in return. Relief, when it is needed, is a proper function of the department of agriculture. But when subsides are paid out to cover up conditions created by two conflicting major policies, it is time to put an end to expensive governmental nonsense.

Morning Motto

Zeal without knowledge is like fire without a grate to contain it, like a sword without a hilt to wield it by; like a highbred horse without a bridle to guide him. It speaks without thinking, acts without planning, seeks to accomplish a good end without the adoption of becoming means.—BATE.

Servant and Master

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

As we see it, the paramount question before the American people today, with a presidential election only a little more than two weeks away, is whether they want a president who will be their master. It is a question that should be considered prayerfully, for upon the decision reached may hinge the whole future of the United States of America.

Wendell L. Willkie, who seeks the presidency as the candidate of the Republican party, is a leader who believes devoutly in the principle of representative government. He has no delusions of grandeur. If elected he wants only to carry out the functions of the office as prescribed by law, to rout incompetency in government and make it an instrument for the promotion of the public welfare. His experience in private life inspires faith in his ability to put the affairs of government in order.

President Roosevelt, who now seeks a third term in defiance of a cherished American tradition, is a different type of man. He seeks for himself complete mastery over the institutions of government and the regimentation of all the people. He has the dictator complex and if elected he would not hesitate to introduce some form of totalitarianism. Thoughtful persons fear his impulsiveness, which might readily lead him to interpret a victory in the present election as a mandate to be master of the people. And rooting for him are some of the most unscrupulous political bosses of the nation—Hague of New Jersey, Kelly of Chicago, Pendergast of Kansas City, Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania. And at his side, encouraging him to take more and more power into his own hands, are the mischievous Corcorans and Cohens, whose creed is that the people are not fit to rule.

That is the choice that confronts the American voters. If they want a master after the pattern set by Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini, they can have him by electing Franklin Delano Roosevelt and saying goodbye to the tradition Americans have cherished for 150 years. If they want a competent leader and public servant, their choice will be Wendell Willkie.

Writers Disclose German Espionage And Sabotage

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

The organization of German espionage and sabotage in the United States in 1914 and 1915 was supposed to have been a hasty improvisation. The Germans had built smoothly working organizations in Europe, but hadn't had quite time enough to get around to us. As one reads the newly published book, "Spy and Counterspy," by Emanuel Victor Voska and Will Irwin, the thought of what may have happened in the years between the wars is not reassuring.

This revelation of the havoc wrought and the poison spread by these hurried, makeshift efforts is a disturbing reminder that modern, nihilistic Germany really has had its mind on its work, and there is good reason to believe that the $50,000,000 spent in the above effort was small change compared to the recent, current and continuous outlay.

Extraordinary

This book is both extraordinary melodrama and an extraordinary life story. Voska had come to the United States from Czechoslovakia, made a business success, taken American citizenship and reared a family. He had good reason to keep clear of Old World entanglements, but early in 1914, sensing new tension in Europe which might lead to war, he began to consider the possibility of prying his native Bohemia loose from what he hoped would be the wreck of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

He went to Prague and made contact with the great and gifted Masaryk. Their plans were taking shape when the Sarajevo murders touched off the powder train which started the war. With his sixteen-year-old daughter Vilia, who had accompanied him to Europe, he ran the gauntlet of German and Austrian guards.

Secrets in Shoes

Imbedded in the soles of his specially made shoes were secret documents for Lord Kitchener in London. Vilia had messages wrapped around her corset stays. They delivered their messages and Voska returned to the United States and recruited 300,000 loyal Czech-Americans in an amazing counter-espionage organization which dealt endless misery to the Germans.

Mr. Voska's book is the story of their penetration of the German and Austrian consulates and embassies, their solving of the "pencil bomb" plots by which American ships were being blown up, with new light on the Black Tom explosion, the seizure of the Von Papen documents and Dr. Heinrich Albert's famous portfolio, and many other blazing sensations of the World war period, before and after our entry.

Startling Range

Several foggy stories which have seen only news print before now emerge, as on a photographer's plate in a dark room in sharp outlines, revealing the startling range and ruthlessness of the German machinations in this country. The book is definitely a contribution to history—unhappily to history of the moment, as many of the conspirators ferreted out by Mr. Voska are still in the day's news of the renewed German onslaught against peaceful nations.

Will Irwin had met Emanuel Voska in the spring of 1918 when Mr. Irwin, working with the George Creel Committee, was co-operating with Dr. Masaryk and the Czechs.

"He showed up promptly at that apartment which I kept in New York for confidential interviews," writes Mr. Irwin, "a strongly built man with a round, powerful, Slavonic head, shrewd, yellowish gray eyes, a determined fighting mouth, an air of authority and a sprute appearance in his American uniform. He proceeded straight to business; and in ten minutes I knew Churchill had sent me a jewel."

Excellent Collaborator

Mr. Irwin's intimate knowledge of and participation in the events described has obviously equipped him as an excellent collaborator. Mr. Voska sank much of his personal fortune into his brilliantly successful counter-espionage against the Germans. He returned to his free Czechoslovakia, built another fortune and was master of a great estate when Hitler came. They had his record of course. Miraculously, he escaped.

Here again, in a house on Long Island, with his family he makes still another start—and he says confidently that Czechoslovakia will do the same.

"So here we are," he says in conclusion, "ten of us in one house, making a new start in a land old to us, where men can breathe. At any rate, we are alive and together."—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Quotable Quotes

By Wendell L. Willkie

No one in the United States believes more in social security than I do. But I do want to say this in connection with social security that unless there is a change in administration those people who are presently paying into the Social Security fund will never get any benefit therefrom

Special Skit and Style Show Will Feature Second Half of Follies

A special skit worked on the old favorite Cinderella theme, will open the second half of the Junior Volunteer "Follies" Friday evening at the Strand theater. The skit also incorporates a style show, featuring clothes from Martins, under the personal supervision of Frank A. Martin.

Characters in the skit are Miss Lois Mae Clerihue and Kenneth Beck assisted by Miss Jean Taylor, Miss Charlotte Bender, Miss Elsie Mae Poling, Mrs. Donald R. Moore, Mrs. Allan Weatherholt, George L. Williamson, J. Hodge Smith, Louis Young, Ralph Bowen and Upshur Lowndes.

The models will be Mrs. Robert M. King, Mrs. Fred Z. Hetzel, Mrs. Thomas A. Mills, Mrs. Paul Fletcher, Mrs. Floyd Price, Mrs. Robert MacDonald Bruce, Mrs. R. Arden Lowndes, Mrs. G. William Bibby, Mrs. George A. Schwarzenbach, Mrs. John W. McClure, Jr., Miss Ann Frances Whiting, Miss Mary Baylor Reinhart, Miss Louise Rickey, Miss Ruth Marquis, Miss Virginia Heintz, Miss Marguerite Murray, Miss Jane Hutson and Miss Mary Frances LaManca.

In the style show importance is attached to the new sheer woolens for wear from sports to cocktail hour. Not just new styles, but entirely new cuts. Faultless new shades which allow the ladies to make those fine distinctions so essential to costume harmony, such as Florida sand, pencil slim or new trumpet silhouette, golden wheat, ming blue and sea spray; conversation tones such as rumor rose, gossip aqua, glamour blue, scandal red and moon yellow.

Active winter sports wear such as ski suits, after ski suits of long skirts and challis jackets which stress warmth. For those whose preference is ice skating, suits of corduroy topped with challis jackets and corduroy for lounging. For town wear, bright woolens, jerseys and velveteens, stressing simplicity of line with trimming details of contrasting colors and fur. Town hats of velveteen and wool to wear with dresses of corresponding colors in beaver and velour. For afternoon wear, sequins, beads, embroidery, jewels, all lend note of festivity to crepes and wools alike. For evening, lamb, jeweled chiffons, sequins, trimmed crepes and nets, all over sequin gown, trimmed leopard jerseys and nets.

For afternoon in hats, most fashionable will be off-face, dull velvet and feathers and turbans trimmed in feathers and jewels toned to wear with fur coats. In coats, for morning, imported plaid and tweeds with or without furs and for afternoon, a highlight will be a camels hair white coat. Evening wraps with gold embroidery stress the glamorous tone, furs will also be shown as a compliment to the evening ensemble.

The climax of the review will be an all velvet wedding scene, the bride wearing ivory with soft sheered bodice and long sleeves. The bridesmaids will wear green in twin fashion and a maid of honor in gold.

Purchases $21,000 Farm With Dozen Ears of Corn

Kernels Acquire High Value through Farmer's Twenty-one Years of Work To Develop Blight, Pest Resistant Crop

By WILLIAM A. RUTLEDGE III
Central Press Correspondent

HANNA CITY, Ill., Oct. 13.—A backwoods tenant farmer traded a half dozen ears of corn for a $21,000 farm. Of course, they were not ordinary ears of corn that baldish good-natured Eddie Doubet turned over to Lester Pfister, prominent seed merchant of nearby El Paso.

The corn represented the culmination of 21 years of breeding, an inbred strain which has proven to have astounding power of resistance to chinch bugs and drought in addition to exceptionally high yield (10 bushels an acre with a one-half inch of rain) and rugged stalks. Doubet and his wife, Mildred, now comfortably installed on their splendid farm, can look upon their ownership as the equivalent of a return of exactly $1,000 per year for their persistent efforts in producing a superior strain of corn.

Ever since Eddie began farming as a boy of 18, his neighbors had regarded him as "slightly touched in the head." The most conspicuous evidence, they believed, were the paper bags he placed over the tassels to catch the pollen. Last year he used 50,000 such bags. These bags were transparent and placed over young silks to enable him to get the male and female units for breeding purposes.

Cultivated 180 Acres

Now, for miles around, Eddie is regarded as a farmer whose discoveries may be of profound significance to agriculture. But no one is prouder of him than his wife, who has worked side by side with him in cultivating his 180 acres and conducting his experiments, which took as much as $5,000 in one year from their income.

"The drought years of 1934 and 1936 put us on the map," Doubet said. While farmers throughout the country were suffering terrific losses from lack of moisture and the attendant ravages of the chinch bugs, his corn showed no ill effects.

Doubet was skeptical of the probability that he had developed a remarkable strain of corn. To thoroughly convince himself, he raised a huge crop of chinch bugs in his cornfield with raspberry brambles and soy bean straw. He watched the bugs hatch and swarm over samples of 40 strains. The corn showed no damage and the bugs left the stalks.

The rugged stalks of the Doubet strains repeatedly had proven themselves during high winds and storms. While their neighbors' corn fields were levelled, his corn stood up. Stalks from his silo have supported the entire weight of children in demonstrations of their toughness.

In 1929 an ear of his corn won first place in the contest at the old Peoria Fair and Implement show. The judge who awarded his ear first prize, Prof. J. C. Hackleman of the University of Chicago, took a great interest in his breeding activities and co-operated with him.

Inbred From One Ear

This prize-winning ear was the foundation of the present strain. The kernels from this ear were carefully planted in short rows and the in-breeding of only the strongest and best appearing stalks has been going on for 10 years. From this ear 12 select inbreds have been developed.

Last spring Doubet sold 40 bushels of seed corn for $4,000 and added another $1,000 to finance the most extensive program of experimentation he has ever been able to undertake.

His daughter does most of the housework because Mrs. Doubet prefers to work in the fields with her husband. She has become an expert in "bagging" the pollen and can coax the tractor into doing most anything she wants done.

Pfister, a leading seed merchant, came to Doubet and asked him what he would have to pay for exclusive rights to his new strain of corn.

Without batting an eyelash, Eddie replied, "It'll cost you a mighty good farm."

"It's a deal!" Pfister affirmed.

Eddie and wife picked out the farm they wanted. It cost Pfister $21,000 in cold cash.

E. W. Doubet and his wife, who have developed a new strain of corn which is resistant to blight and drought.

He Took One Look And Ran Away

NEW BERN, N. S. (AP)—Evidently the fellow who turned his automobile over several times at the entrance to a cemetery near here decided he was entirely too near the graveyard. He hasn't been located since his car was found blocking the cemetery entrance.

Leonardo da Vinci, famous fifteenth century painter, was also a scientist and inventor. He invented flying machines, machine guns, ingenious trick to entertain, etc.

Shoes Make News In Two Countries

SPARTANSBURG, S. C. (AP)—Alibis hit a new high in Magistrate Bill Devenport's court when officers testified a negro youth was so drunk he couldn't walk straight.

"I'll tell you how that wuz, Judge," the defendant explained. "You see, I had on some of hard-heeled shoes and they hurt my feet, so I jus' naturally didn't want to walk."

MENDOZA, Argentina (AP)—Segundo Aguirre found here the opposite of seven league boots.

He tried on a pair of shoes and ran from the store without paying. His speed suddenly diminished and police caught him on the second block.

"The new shoes hurt," he said. "I couldn't run."

Surprise!

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Colvin Leonard said he was so astounded that he merely stared without speaking when a stranger walked up and asserted, "You're the biggest liar I ever saw." Then the fellow flustered and obviously embarrassed, stammered apologetically, "—I thought you were somebody else."

Barracks Roll Out Every 90 Minutes

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP)—This army post's theme song is "Roll Out the Barracks."

The quartermaster corps, erecting a 1,000-unit cantonment for training draftees, expects to complete a barracks every 90 minutes. Each is a two-story, 30 by 80-foot building for 63 men.

The 1,000 units will take enough lumber to lay a three-foot boardwalk from Baltimore to San Francisco and back.

Studying dates in American colleges, researchers recently discovered a co-ed frequently spends more money dressing for a date than her boy friend spends taking her out.

Seventy thousand acres of sorghum cover crops and 10,000 acres of grass were planted in the southwestern dust bowl this year by the Soil Conservation Service.

Now Everyone Should Understand

WINTERTHUR, Switzerland (AP)—The laborious and difficult task of translating the Swiss Penal Code into Romansch, the fourth national language of Switzerland, has just been completed.

Professor Dr. P. Tuor has done the translation into this language, spoken by only 40,000 persons living in the canton Graubuenden, Switzland.

Romansch is believed to be the only existing relic of Latin as spoken by the old Romans. It has kept itself intact because the people who speak it have led an isolated existence for centuries in the Graubuenden valleys.

It Has Happened To Others

GULFORD COLLEGE, N. C. (AP)—"Aunt Lucy" Bailey, 65-year-old negro woman, told deputy sheriffs she "got blessed out of $28" by a couple of gypsy women.

They offered to bless money to cast out evil spirits and counseled her to gather up her savings in a sack. The ritual took place and the pair departed.

Later "Aunt Lucy" discovered the gypsies had exchanged "right before my eyes" her sack of money for an assortment of papers, washers, bolts and the like.

Life Is Roof on Them

HICKORY, N. C. (AP)—A mama cat, apparently disgusted with too frequent petting of her kittens, moved them from the basement to the roof of a house here. There, high above an attic window, they live in the great outdoors.

Knighthood Flowers In Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP)—Horses' hooves are kicking up dust from the pages of Medieval history in Maryland these days—ye ancient tilting tournament is ruling strong again.

Entire towns, from rustics to nobles, turn out at the cry of "Charge, Sir Knight!" — while military airplanes may be roaring overhead on training flights.

The tourneys declined after the World war, but about 20 are being held throughout the state this year. Some retain all the pomp and tradition of the Middle Ages, but in most, medieval costumes have given way to khaki breeches and sport shirts.

They are nice and soft, too. Bone-breaking and avenging honor are no longer features.

Vegetable Soup

MT. HOLLY, N. C., (AP)—W. C. Barber grew a potato that is shaped like a dove. The potato has a perfect head and tail and the veins are raised and run like the blood vessels in the bird.

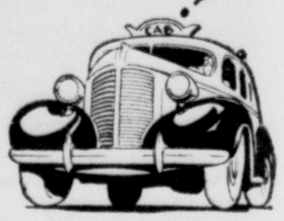

HICKORY, N. C., (AP)—R. R. Fisher grew an "Ugly Duckling" sweet potato. Shaped unmistakably like an animal, the potato has a perfectly moulded neck, with narrow head and large body. The tail and front feet are prominent.

Fox Bites Goat; Then Auto Suffers

ORANGEBURG, S. C. (AP) — A rabid goat attacked Bonner Hutto's automobile. It reared up on the side of the car, bit at fenders and charged so ferociously that the occupants were unable to get out. Hutto asserted the goat apparently had been bitten by a fox since a number of cases of rabies among foxes have been discovered in this area.

Easy-To-Make Apron Style

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9545

"Kitchen duty" becomes a pleasure—with gay working togs like Pattern 9545! It's such an easy-to-make apron, especially if you use the Marian Martin Sew Chart's guidance. The panel down the center tapers to give extra skirt width. Side-front waist seams point high for smooth fit and to hold up the flattering bustline fullness. Notice how the back is cut in one piece, keeping the shoulder straps in place. The neckline may be rounded, as in Apron A, or squared as in B, which looks attractive with option contrast of pockets and top.

Pattern 9545 may be ordered only in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38), large (40-42) and extra large (44-46). Small size, apron A, requires 2⅝ yards 35 inch fabric and 1⅛ yards ric-rac; apron B, 1⅞ yards 35 inch fabric, ⅛ yard contrast and 2¼ yards rufflin.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Moosehart Day Will Be Observed By Local Moose

Program Featuring Music and Dances To Be Held Oct. 27

Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, will observe "Moosehart Day" Sunday, Oct. 27, at the Moose home, Beall street, with a choice program, George J. Erling announced last night.

The program will start at 5 p. m. with a floor show featuring members of the Lee Winter Dance Studio. A buffet luncheon will be served at 6:30 p. m. and a concert by the Moose band, directed by Prof. A. R. Serf, will follow.

Members of the "Moosehart Day" committee are Joseph Lookabaugh, chairman, Charles McCullough, J. G. Humbertson, William O'Braden, William Mauck and W. L. Brunk.

Musical numbers for the concert includes: (March) "Washington Post," by Sousa; (Overture) "Norma," by V. Bellini; (Waltz) "The Skater," by Waldteufel; (Selection) "Show Boat," by Jerome Kern; (March) "National Anthem," by Bagley; (March-Fox Trot) "Over the Rainbow," by Yoder; (American Fantasia) "Gems of Stephen Foster," by Theo M. Tobania, and the "Star Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key.

Mooseheart, Ill., is the "Child City" of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Noted C. E. Leader To Speak at Rally

Carroll M. Wright, of Boston, Mass., executive secretary of the Society of International Christian Endeavor will speak tonight at 7:45 p. m. in the Bethany United Brethren church, Fourth and Race streets.

He will address a combined rally of all the societies in Allegany county.

Preceding the rally a banquet will be held in the church basement, at 6 p. m. at which time there will be a round table discussion led by Mr Wright.

Mr. Wright was field secretary for the Maryland C. E. Union before going to Boston, and he will devote Thursday to making personal contacts in Allegany county.

Beatrice Clifford

and I got along fine, had our ups and downs, but nothing major."

Clifford testified that he met Bailey and his wife on May 5. He told his wife he wanted to make arrangements for Gail, their child, he said. Bailey told him "anything you've got to say to her you say to me," Clifford said.

Later, John Turano, who occupied the room next to Clifford's in a Cumberland hotel, told him he'd better go to the police, Clifford said. Turano told him Bailey and his wife came to the hotel while he was out and that Bailey "threatened to kill him," the witness testified.

Went To See Police

Clifford said he went to police headquarters and talked to John Trieber, assistant chief. Trieber referred him to C. V. Barncord, Ridgeley police chief, he said. Clifford told Barncord he wanted to "get his daunghter out of that house."

Later, he saw Bailey again in a downtown restaurant, the witness said. Bailey told him that he and Mrs. Clifford had been on intimate terms for two years and that they had corresponded since she married Clifford. Bailey wanted to arrange a meeting with Mrs. Clifford to prove what he said was true, the witness said.

On May 13, the three met and Mrs. Clifford proposed a meeting in the park, Clifford testified. Before going to the park he went to see Assistant Chief Trieber again. Trieber advised him to get a lawyer, he said.

When the three met at the park, Mrs. Clifford told him that everything Bailey had said was true, the witness said.

Clifford said he told them "all he wanted" was his daughter. His wife replied, "you'll never see the day," he said.

The witness said he told her "a woman that would drop to that depth an honest man wouldn't want."

Clifford said that after that "Bailey goes as though to go for his hip pocket. I pulled a gun out of my pocket and I shot him."

Clifford said he went to the park fearful of Bailey, said he knew Bailey had threatened to kill him.

When Bailey reached for his hip pocket Clifford said "I thought it was him or me."

Did Not Strike Bailey

The witness said he did not strike Bailey after shooting him as far as he knew.

"After I started shooting, it's God's truth that I didn't know what I was doing," Clifford said. "I'm telling the truth about this regardless of whether it hurts or helps me."

Witnesses presented by the state included Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, Dr. Ralph C. Bowen, Assistant Chief Trieber, C. V. Barncord, Ridgeley chief, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, Officers John Powers, Robert E. Flynn and Harold Kennard, all who worked on the case last May 13.

Another state witness was Thomas Gilchrist, Jr., salesman at the Wilson hardware, who testified Clifford purchased a number of bullets for a 38 caliber revolver the afternoon of May 13.

The defense is being represented by Albert A. Doub, Jr., Elmer B. Gower and Robert MacD. Bruce.

Acker Forfeits Bond

Charles C. Acker, 221 Baltimore street, forfeited $5 bond yesterday in police court for driving through a red traffic signal at Baltimore and Mechanic streets.

Officer James J. Condon preferred the charge.

One Birth Reported

It's a Legend

They Say These Trees Are Supernatural

MOUNT VERNON, Ia., (AP) — "Comb your hair in the shade of the Gingko tree, make a wish, and it'll come true," says a legend at Cornell college here.

That's what Jean Beauchamp, Cedar Rapids, Ia., senior, is doing but what the "wish" was, she wouldn't tell.

The Gingko tree, from Japan, sheds its leaves only at night. Twice in recent years the Cornell Gingko has been woven into novels written by graduates of the college.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., (AP) — Nature and legend have built this monument to Mandy Holloman, a negro woman dead 24 years.

The white oak stands just outside Madisonville where, if you believe in ghost stories, a "ha'nt" keeps silent vigil. The foliage forms a perfect image of Mandy's head.

The woman was slain by a bullet near the tree and her death never has been solved. Legend insists she planted it and died while caring for it. When the moon is just right to cast a silhouette scores of Kentuckians drive here to see the tree.

High School Student Injured in Class

Cecil Twigg, 18, of 149 Mary street, was taken to Memorial hospital, yesterday afternoon, after a piece of wood caught in an electric saw and flew back against his left hand.

The youth is a student at Fort Hill high school and was working in the manual training department at the time of the accident.

He suffered a laceration of the first finger and lacerations and a fracture of the second finger. A splint was placed on the broken finger and he was discharged.

Church Circle Meets

Circle No. 2 of St. Luke's Lutheran church, was entertained by Mrs. Lewis W. Metz, 615 Bedford street, at a meeting attended by Mrs. Hall Sharp, Mrs. John Schlunt, Mrs. William Shaw, Mrs. John P. Spoerl, Mrs. Marshall Twigg, Mrs. B. W. O'Rourke, Mrs. Katherine Sills, Miss Emma Zink, Miss Helen Wildman and Mrs. J. K. Robb, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Child Is Hurt

Margaret Hershberger, 14, of Ridgeley, W. Va., fell over a rock and broke her left forearm, yesterday, while playing near her home.

She was taken to Memorial hospital where her injury was treated and she was released.

Child Fatally Burned

LOGAN, W. Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—Fire which destroyed three houses at Accoville today burned to death 4-year-old Janice Lee Barker despite the effort of a passerby to rescue her. The child was trapped in a bedroom.

Personal Items

Miss Wanna Ruth Thomas, R. N., 734 Maryland avenue, who has been a patient at Memorial hospital for two weeks, underwent a major operation Tuesday morning.

Jewish Holidays Close With Church Service

The end of a Jewish holiday season that began with the New Year celebration three weeks ago, was observed last night at B'er Chayim Temple. Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz preached on "Mediation on Life."

Children of the religious school took their offerings of fruit, vegetables and canned goods to the temple last Sunday, in observance of a custom that antedates the American Thanksgiving. The food was given to the Keating Memorial Day Nursery and the Salvation Army, and a crate of apples was sent to the Police Boys' Club for the opening of the new club room in the basement of the Public Safety building.

Candle Causes Fire

West Side firemen were called yesterday at 1:25 p. m. to the home of Toler G. Burks, 713 Fairmont avenue, when a lighted candle fell on the bathroom floor. No damage was caused.

Duke Bible Class Will Have Social

The Duke Memorial Men's Bible Class will have a social session Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the Central Y. M. C. A. A program of music and several short talks has been arranged.

Parking System Is Changed on Centre Street

In an effort to speed up traffic on Centre street city officials have put into effect a plan whereby parking will be allowed only on the left-hand side of the street, between Baltimore and Bedford street.

Memorial Hospital Staff Elects Officers

Yippee, Ki-Yi, It's Rodeo Time And Broadway's Gone Wild West

By FRED BROWNING
AP Feature Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK—They've hauled the lone prairee out of a Brooklyn warehouse and planted it smack in the middle of Manhattan.

Bright-shirted, bowlegged buckaroos with their lazy nasal drawls have taken over the haunts of staccato-barking boxing bettors an ordorous boxing match doesn't create.

It's rodeo time, the three weeks each year when Manhattan goes Wild West and lets loose with yippees and yowees for its favorite cowboys. This year the event runs until October 27.

It's one of the biggest shows staged in the Garden and requires the most extensive preparation. Five days before the rodeo opened, and while Fritzie Zivic was winning the welterweight title from Henry Armstrong in the arena upstairs, workmen were already preparing quarters below for 655 wild range animals.

And Referee Donovan had scarcely raised the victor's hand until Garden employes were tearing down the ring and ringside seats to clear the scene for the rodeo.

It takes about 72 hours to transplant that loam soil from its Brooklyn storage place, pack it eight inches deep over the huge arena and put in the 'chutes from which the bronchos emerge. The arena must be covered as soon as possible to provide exercise grounds for the cowponies champing in their stalls below.

While that's going on, truck after truck with their cargoes of wild horses, buckers, steers, calves, and cows wind down the ramps into the huge exposition room which serves as the corral.

Many of the performers won't send their favorite mounts in on the special 17 - car stock train. They come filing in, cars with trailers attached, up until the opening day of the show.

The rodeo's singing star, Gene Autry, flew his movie horse in from the coast—a far cry from the old west days when all the contestants rode to the contest scene.

The rodeo program is about the same—retaining the trend toward glamorization started last year when the Texas Cowgirls, ranch-owners' daughters, gave a riding exhibition at each performance.

This year's pretty girl feature presents a half dozen daughters of cattlemen picked in contests from 12 states. They will compete in a "cutting-out" contest riding into a herd of longhorn steers and driving a designated steer from the herd against time.

It Can't Happen Here

SPARTANSBURG, S. C. (AP) — Elizabeth Wideman, Spartansburg county probation officer, hung a new key outside her office door. She says she's always locking herself out.

Getting the Facts Without the Face

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—A murderer, a highway robber and a woman vagrant—all serving time in state and county prisons—donned masks and told the stories of their crimes at a Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting here.

The program was in connection with the Junior Chamber's work in youth welfare and crime prevention.

Oregon's Union Control Law Is Unconstitutional

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 23 (AP)—Oregon's union control law, passed by the voters two years ago, has been declared unconstitutional in a 5 to 1 decision by the state supreme court.

The law prohibited picketing or boycotting of an employer unless more than half of his employes were involved in a dispute involving wages, hours or working conditions. The attack against the law was made by the American Federation of Labor, the congress of industrial organizations, and the railroad brotherhoods.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

American 'Parents' Help Young Finns Go to School

A Hundred Already Are Adopted

AP Feature Service

Helsinki—Barefooted lads of six, gangly girls of 12, and even university students are going back to school in Finland this fall with the help of American foster parents.

The children are those orphaned by the war. From $25 to $300 already has been paid for about 100 children.

The idea of long-distance adoption is similar to that for Belgium after the World War and is administered by The Mannerheim League for Child Welfare.

Officials hope to carry out the program for perhaps 20,000 children—chiefly orphans but also those in need because their parents lost their homes.

The League, founded in 1920 at the instigation of Field Marshal Mannerheim, commander-in-chief of the army, carries on much social welfare that in other countries would be done by the state.

Maternity welfare, with training courses for nurses and mothers; "loan baskets" of baby clothing for needy mothers; dietary education for children and agricultural clubs are included in its program.

Joe's Sort of Blue, His Letter Was Too

PUEBLO, Colo., (AP)—Six months ago relatives in Denmark mailed a letter to Joe Kiblosky of Pueblo. First it was censored by the Germans. Later the British blue-pencilled it. Sure, you guessed it. There was hardly anything left to read.

Two Wrongs Don't Make a Right

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP) — When a motorist double-parked to go into a restaurant for a purchase here an officer wrote a ticket—and gave it to the clerk who waited on the motrist. The charge was dismissed in recorder's court.

The name of the sweet-scented, greenish white garden flower, the mignonette, simply means "little darling" in French.

Slight Mistakes Department

HELSINKI (AP) — Three girls of the Lottasvard, the Finnish women's defense organization, were reported killed in action in the Arctic during the first week of the war.

The announcement was a mistake. The girls were captured and taken to a Red army camp in the Ural mountains.

They're home now, among the 847 prisoners sent back by the Russians after the war, in exchange for 5,468 prisoners held by the Finns.

THE DAILY STORY

THE SOLDIER

With the Thunder of the Guns in His Ears, a Young Man Makes the Most Important Decision of His Life

By EILEEN BURKE

Capt. Warwick straightened his shoulders and squared his jaw. He was a soldier, and a soldier's jaw must always be square and his shoulders straight. Even today. And tomorrow. And all the tomorrows.

He walked slowly from the car into his elaborate country home. In the clouded east there was a vague sound like thunder. It had been there for weeks. "Thunder"—that was what he and Elizabeth told the children it was—only "thunder." The children believed it—except Arthur. Arthur knew.

"When, father? When will the 'thunder' come here? When will it be on top of our heads?"

Yes, Arthur was old enough to know. And the boy wasn't afraid. Capt. Warwick thanked God that his son wasn't afraid.

Elizabeth was coming down the curving stairway as Warwick entered the living room. She saw him.

"Warwick." Her soft voice tingled with surprise. "But I thought you were to stay in London until tomorrow."

"My business was all taken care of this morning—sooner than I had expected. It was dreadfully important business, Elizabeth. It concerns you and the children." Warwick stopped. He hadn't intended to tell her so abruptly but now he had started.

"Concerns us?" She listened.

"Yes. In London, I made final arrangements for you and the children to go to America. You will stay with some business friends of mine in Boston."

Elizabeth's slender hand went to her heart. "Warwick! No, Warwick—you can't mean it."

"Yes, my dear. You will sail this Saturday."

"But how can you, Warwick? How can you send us away from you . . . from our home . . . to a land of utter strangers? How can you——" she broke off.

"Not strangers, Elizabeth. Neighbors. Good neighbors. And there are so few good neighbors left in the world."

Elizabeth said: "I'm so glad you've come home for Arthur's birthday, Warwick. You haven't forgotten, he's 16 today, have you?"

Arthur's birthday. And she was afraid he had forgotten. No, he couldn't tell her about Arthur now. He knew he could never tell her about Arthur. The decision must rest with the boy—the boy who worshiped his mother—the impressionable, emotional lad who was only 16 today.

Arthur bounded down the stairs beside them. "Father!" He was surprised like Elizabeth. "Father—you've come home for my birthday! Crickets! I'm glad."

Warwick took hold of his son's square young shoulders. They were strong. But were they strong enough for such a heavy decision?

Elizabeth kissed the boy on his forehead. "I remember how he was, 16 years ago today," she said reminiscently, "so little and squalling."

"Come into the library a few minutes, son," Warwick said. "I'd like to talk something over with you."

Elizabeth turned quickly and walked to the window. The quiet made the vague sound of the "thunder" in the east more distinct.

"Arthur, my son," Warwick began when they were alone, "today I obtained the final papers to send your mother and your sisters—and you—to America. That is, you—only if you wish to go. You are 16 today, son. That means you can go into the military service."

"If you wish to go to America, all arrangements are made."

Arthur's eyes flashed with a quick fire. Immediately, he knew what his father meant.

Warwick went on. "If you wish to go to America, all arrangements are made. If you wish to stay here—that is your decision."

The boy looked toward the living room, toward the mother who was in there—the mother who loved him so deeply, even when he was "little and squalling." She did not remember what his 16th birthday meant. She would never consent to his staying. Warwick knew and Arthur knew.

But Warwick didn't say anything more. Neither did Arthur.

And the days marched by. There was furious packing with Elizabeth supervising efficiently. Her eyes were quiet and no emotion showed in them. The girls were unsuspecting. Like they were about the "thunder." Going on a trip. To America. A storybook land. They chattered excitedly.

And Arthur. Arthur, saying nothing. Eating only when his mother looked at him so she wouldn't notice. Giving no answer but letting his things be packed with the rest. Warwick watched and a great hurt ached in his heart—ached all the days and through the nights until Saturday.

Capt. Warwick put his family on the boat. Said good-by. The girls and Elizabeth first. Then he took hold of Arthur's shoulders. "Bon voyage, son." That was all he said. And Arthur said nothing and looked away.

Quickly, before they were ready to sail, Capt. Warwick left the boat. He lost himself in the crowd, then turned his back and closed his eyes. He knew when they pulled up the gangplank.

A hand took hold of his arm, almost roughly. Capt. Warwick looked around.

"My answer, father—it's yes. I wrote a letter to mother and left it with her things and I ran back to shore without her seeing me. I thought it best that way—not letting her know. She would never have gone without me."

Warwick looked at his son. The boy's shoulders were straight and his jaw was square.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

The Finns Seem To Like Taxes

HELSINKI (AP) — The Finnish government, in need of immediate cash and seeking to speed payment of property taxes, hit upon the idea of interest-bearing certificates.

The citizen could buy a certificate to the amount of his taxes, in advance, and receive six per cent interest on the money for the period between the purchase and the date the taxes were due.

The scheme was so successful that certificates are being sold now as desirable investments.

SEE ALL THESE AMAZING FEATURES OF America's New Kind of Car!

GOES LIKE A STREAK! For all its economy, the new Nash "Flying Scot" Engine can whisk you from 15 to 50 in 12 seconds, high gear

Coil springs on rear wheels, too! Safe, sturdy yet so responsive that your foot-weight activates them.

OVER 500 MILES TO A TANKFUL

As high as 32 miles to the gallon of gasoline has been recorded with the Fourth Speed Forward; high as 21 miles a gallon at 70 M.P.H.

Sedans are quickly converted into a big doublebed. This original Nash feature can save you $20 to $35 a year, and bother, too.

Now—Nash Four Door Sedans from $830*. Deluxe Model Illustrated $910

The new kind of car that took Nash years to build, millions of dollars to develop . . . so different, it's literally an Auto Show all in itself!

Today, for the first time, you'll see a big car powered to deliver 25 to 30 miles a gallon with good driving, favorable conditions.

The first big car that can do over 500 miles on a tankful of gas! (Saving $1.50 to $2.00 each tankful.)

Today, you'll know the thrill of "Flying Scot" performance—a new engine with moving parts pre-balanced by radio. The smoothest, liveliest "six" you've ever driven!

For the first time—Two-way Ball-bearing Steering, that makes this big car easier to handle than a small one.

For the first time—at its price—coil springs on all four wheels.

For the first time under $1,000—a car with frame and body welded into one unit—safer, roomier. A front seat nearly five feet wide!

But the biggest shock of all are the price-tags! Nash prices are $70 to $159 lower, including the 1941 Ambassador 6's and 8's.

In fact, this 1941 Nash is so utterly new . . . different—that you must see it, drive it, compare it, before you buy any less modern automobile. On display now—see it today!

Injection of Pure Ethel Alcohol To Cure Angina Pectoris Is Described

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP) — An injection of pure ethyl (beverage) alcohol into the neck to cure the pain of angina pectoris, one of the serious forms of heart disease, was described to the American College of Surgeons here.

The treatment was demonstrated by Dr. Samuel Perlow, of Chicago. It was developed, he said, by Dr James White of Boston.

Angina is a very painful heart trouble. Dr. Perlow said the alcohol injections had given complete relief in forty per cent of the cases tried, and partial relief in another thirty-five per cent.

The alcohol is injected into one of two main nerves which automatically control contraction of arteries that serve the heart muscles. It does not go directly into the nerve, but into gangila, which are relay centers in nerves.

The theoretical explanation is that the nerve is sufficiently destroyed so that it cannot cause the heart muscle arteries to contract any more. Spasms of contraction in these coronary arteries are presumed to be the reason for angina pains.

University of Maryland Enrollment Reaches 5,088

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—The University of Maryland's enrollment for the two branches has reached 5,088, according to statistics by the registrar's office.

The report showed a gain of 274 over last year for the College Park branch and ninety-nine for the Baltimore schools, a total of 373. The increase represented an eight per cent gain.

Total enrollment at the six colleges and the graduate school here is 3,624, and at Baltimore, 1,464. The only decreases shown were in the Law and Pharmacy Schools at Baltimore, off seven and five per cent, respectively, from last year.

Total enrollments for the various branches are:

College Park: Agriculture 423; arts and sciences 1,062; commerce 399; education 470; engineering 597; home economics 304; graduate school 369.

Baltimore: Dentistry 376; education 208; law 210; medicine 380; nursing 142; pharmacy 148.

C. C. Orendorf, Garrett Farmer, Dies at Age 73

Heart Ailment Proves Fatal to Resident of Bittinger Section

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 23—Christian C. Orendorf, well-known farmer in this section, died at his home near Bittinger yesterday after a brief illness. He was 73. Although he had been in failing health for several years, he did not become seriously ill until Friday night, and his death, which was attributed to a heart condition and complications, came as a shock to his family as well as the community.

Mr. Orendorf was born December 6, 1867, in Pennsylvania, on a farm near here now occupied by Thomas Hetrick. He was a son of of Christian C. and Lena Beachy Orendorf, his father being a native of Germany. When he was only four years old, his parents moved to a farm near Bittinger, and, with the exception of about two and a half years when he resided at Canton, O., he has spent his entire life in the Bittinger community. He owned and successfully operated the farm which which has been his home for the past forty-six years.

In his early boyhood, Mr. Orendorf became a member of the Amish church, but later transferred this membership to the Mennonite church.

On January 25, 1892, at Oakland, he married Miss Anna Beitzel, daughter of the late Henry and Mary Shoemaker Beitzel. Ten children were born to them, three of whom, two daughters and an only son, have preceeded him in death.

Surviving are his wife and the following daughters: Mrs. David Schwary, Mrs. H. J. Bender, Mrs. Roy Resh and Miss Clara Orendorf, all of Canton, O.; Mrs. Sherman Miller and Mrs. J. J. Burkholder, Grantsville; and Susie Orendorf, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Beitzel, Accident, and Mrs. Barbara Brenneman, Grantsville; one half-sister, Mrs. Susan Schrock, and one half-brother, Soloman Orendorf, both of Accident, and nine grandchildren.

Marriage Announced

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Elsie Kolbfleisch, Somerfield, Pa., and Russell Smith, Jennings, which took place Sunday evening, October 13. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of Grantsville Methodist church by the Rev. Virgil B. Gillum, pastor.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Lucinda Kolbfleisch, Somerfield, and is a graduate of Accident high school. Mr. Smith is a son of Mrs. Elmer Weimer, near here, and at present is employed near Grantsville.

Farm Group Meets

The Farm Bureau Discussion Group No. 1 met at the home of William Winterberg and Miss Christian Winterberg here last night for their October session. "Candling and Grading of Eggs" was the topic for the evening, and Varner Carpenter, Frostburg, was present to address the meeting. Mr. Carpenter has recently completed a course in this subject at the University of Maryland and is said to be the only person in this locality holding a federal license for such work. He explained the various phases required in handling the eggs and answered questions regarding the work.

Miss Beulah Engle and Mr. Winterberg gave reports on the rural electrification meeting held at Friendsville a short time ago. A number of people in the rural sections of the Grantsville community have shown considerable interest in obtaining electricity for use on their farms and several of those present indicated they would make further investigations in an effort to bring this convenience to rural residents of this section as early as possible. Eighteen members attended the meeting.

Jailed for 137 Days

Zacharia Conn, Que Creek, Pa., was taken to the county jail at Oakland yesterday, where he began serving a sentence of 137 days. He was committed at a hearing before Trial Magistrate Charles S. Zeller after he had pleaded guilty to charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicants, reckless driving and driving at an excessive rate of speed. State Trooper Carl G. Storm, who preferred the charges, arrested Conn near here Monday. He was lodged in jail for the night and returned here for the hearing yesterday. Magistrate Zeller fixed the fines on the three charges at $100, $10 and $25 and costs, respectively, and Conn was remanded to jail in default of payment.

John F. Wise, Meyersdale, was arrested on Negro mountain yesterday and fined $15 and costs when he pleaded guilty to operating a commercial vehicle in excess of the speed limit. E. C. Dunlap, Dickerson, Pa., was arrested on Route 40 east of here, for passing near the top of a hill, which offense carried a fine of $5 and costs. Joseph Raymond, Uniontown, was also fined $20 and costs yesterday for exceeding the commercial speed limit on Route 40. All three pleaded guilty and were released upon payment of their fine and costs. Trooper Storm made the arrests.

Grantsville Briefs

Business Men Pla More Advertising

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct 23 (AP) — Paul B. West, president of the Association of National Advertisers, said today the nation's business men were planning larger advertising budgets to keep step with anticipated trade gains.

A survey of A. N. A. members, including many of the largest advertisers in the country, West said, showed at least fifty-six per cent proposed to spend more money on advertising in 1941 than this year. Six per cent indicated smaller budgets, and the remainder were waiting for developments.

West's analysis of the questionnaire opened the thirty-first annual convention of the association. The first day was devoted mostly,however, to technical discussions behind closed doors.

Engineer Pleads Guilty To Slaying Employer, Sentenced to Life Term

WELCH, W. Va., Oct. 23 (AP) — Grey-haired Fred B. McClure abruptly halted the state's plans to try him for murder today when he pleaded guilty to hammering his employer into unconsciousness and throwing his body into an elevator shaft.

The 39-year-old mining engineer, who said he became enraged and killed G. Dewey Hylton, 42, because a $40 loan was refused, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

He also pleaded guilty to three indictments charging that he forged Hylton's name to checks, and Criminal Court Judge E. C. Marshall imposed three additional sentences of from two to ten years.

The body of Hylton, head of an engineering firm, was found atop a passenger cage in an office building elevator shaft last July 10. A coroner's jury first entered the death as accidental. But friends of Hylton insisted his death was not an accident and officers reopened the case.

Piedmont Pupils Schedule Debate

Aid to Great Britain To Be Topic at Literary Meeting Friday

WESTERNPORT, Oct. 23 — The Lancastrian Literary Society of Piedmont high school will debate on the subject "The United States Should Send Aid to Great Britain" at its meeting Friday afternoon.

The affirmative team consists of Charles Kight and Nelson Boyce; the negative, Betty Schoppert and Lenna Logsdon.

Other program features will include readings by Betty Mullen and Carmela Greco; poems by Frank Fike, Donald Henry, Donna Lee Metcalf and Martha Maynard.

Tri-Towns Briefs

A mixed quartet from the Church of the Brethren, Petersburg, and a male quartet from the Methodist church at Cresaptown, will furnish special music at the revival service tomorrow (Thursday) night at the Church of the Brethren, Main street, Westernport. The Rev. Foster Bittinger, pastor of the Terra Alta church and field worker for the first district of West Virginia, is conducting the services, assisted by the pastor, the Rev. N. D. Cosner.

First Five Draft Numbers Posted For Mineral; All Piedmont Men

KEYSER, W. Va., Oct. 23 — The first five numbers of the approximately 2,600 Mineral county men who registered for the draft last week were posted today at draft board headquarters in the law building here.

All Piedmonters, they were: Richard Lee Riggs, 1; Michael Joseph Poland, 2; Andrew Joseph Amoroso, 3; Joseph Ray Ashenfelter, 4, and Joseph Martin Smith, 5.

All the cards have been numbered, and a complete list will be posted shortly, Miss Audrey Kiser, chief clerk at the offices said today.

Keyser Briefs

The Lyceum sponsored by the Keyser Lions club opened tonight in the Keyser high school auditorium, when J. Franklin Caveny, artist and sculptor, appeared on the stage at 8 o'clock. Only the east and west entrances to the new building were open, Lions club members said, the main entrance to the junior high school building, which adjoins the auditorium, having been kept closed.

Miss Hallie Sayre was hostess at a luncheon yesterday at the Glen hotel, Mineral street, honoring Miss Edna Babb, Cleveland. Other guests were Mrs. Marion Workman, Mrs. E. B. Reynolds, Mrs. J. T. Little, Mrs. A. A. Jordan, Mrs. Kate Babb, and the Misses Catherine Hodgson and Pauline Gelwicks.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Litten announce the birth yesterday of a daughter at their home on A street.

Miss Lucille Wright was hostess at a meeting of the Keyser Business and Professional Women's club last night at her cottage on Patterson's creek. Following the serving of a covered dish supper, a short business session was held, during which a Spanish study club was organized, with Miss Jeanette McGuffie, of the Keyser high school faculty, as sponsor. Miss Madaleine Martin presided at the meeting. In addition to the regular members of the club, Mrs. Paul C. Rouzer and Miss Marian Bell were present as guests.

Old 'Scotch Castle' at Mt. Savage Renovated To Become Private Club

Anniversary Party of Catholic Daughters To Be Initial Function

MT. SAVAGE, Oct. 23—Under the direction of "Gus" Harris, well-known Frostburg business man, the renovation of the largest and most beautiful residence in this section is nearing completion.

The place was the original home of Dr. Alexander Thompson and is situated on the main highway, directly above the Union Mining company factory. The estate is known to residents here as the "Ramsay property."

Mr. Harris plans to open an exclusive club, doing only reservation business for the first few months, at least. If business is favorable on this basis, he plans to continue along these lines.

Opening Wednesday

The opening affair will be the banquet in honor of the twentieth anniversary of the Catholic Daughters of America, which will be held Wednesday evening. Mr. Harris says he has a number of other banquets and formal parties scheduled for the near future.

The property was originally owned by the Union Mining company and was bought by Dr. Thompson in 1873. The home was erected early the following year. However, it was not until Andrew Ramsay, president of the Mt. Savage Enamel Brick company, purchased the property in 1896, that the building assumed its present architectural perfection.

Mr. Ramsay had the place rebuilt and authentically patterned after the old Craig Castle in Scotland. It is a handsome stone structure with the distinguishing turrets and spires of the old world. A twenty-five foot stone wall is erected from the base of the knoll on which the house is situated, to the foundation. At the top of the wall is encircled by a marble balastrade and forms a portico.

Expensive Wall

A lawn slopes from this portico, and the residence is almost entirely hidden from view by numerous pine trees, shrubbery and vines which have grown up the sides of the house and wall. Besides the large building there is a smaller dwelling, formerly used as servant's quarters, and a twelve-car garage. The entire property is enclosed by a ten foot stone wall, which alone cost approximately $30,000. The stones in the buildings and walls are all handhewn.

Aside from the twenty rooms on the first and second floors, there is a large ballroom which takes up the entire third floor. Floor-length windows are installed throughout the house and all the floors are of inlaid hardwood.

Mr. Harris, in redecorating the building has done much to preserve the former atmosphere. Drapes, rugs, wall coverings and furnishings are all conservative and in good taste. The large drawing room on the first floor will be used as a banquet hall and the former dining room has been furnished to fit the demands of a small formal party or dinner.

Ballroom Renovated

The floor of the ballroom has been sanded and waxed and will accommodate an average number for a private dance. New equipment has been installed in the white-tiled kitchen, which has been entirely remodeled.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris have furnished the front section of the second floor as an apartment where they will reside. Most of the furnishings in these rooms are genuine antiques and are fitting to the general background which the house itself provides.

No definite name for the place has been decided upon, Mr. Harris stated.

The last owner of the property was Benjamin Bias, who moved to Washington several years ago.

Mt. Savage Briefs

A card party will be sponsored by St. George's choir tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock in the parish house. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served.

A Hallowe'en party will be held Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in St. Patrick's hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Prizes

Rep. Randolph Speaks Tonight At Petersburg

Democratic Candidate for Re-Election also To Talk at Moorefield

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 23—Jennings Randolph, candidate for reelection to the House of Representatives, will address the voters of Grant county at a Democratic meeting at the court house here tomorrow (Thursday) at 7 p. m. Immediately after his address here he will go to Moorefield, Hardy county, where he is scheduled to speak later in the evening.

Marks 94th Birthday

Mrs. Emily Kimble Shreve, of Landes, is celebrating her ninety-fourth birthday today at her mountain home near here. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Shreve and was born and reared within a short distance of where she now resides with her two children, Sheridan Shreve and Miss Jane Shreve.

She is very active in and about her home and helps with the house work and does a lot of sewing and quilting. Her eyes are so good that she threads her needles without any glasses.

Her mind is perfectly clear, and she recalls vividly many Civil war events. She says her father was held as a prisoner during the war and that much of their property was taken and destroyed by the "Rebels." Her brother, Arnold Kimble, who was a home guard near here, was killed during a battle at Johnson Run in South Petersburg.

Mrs. Shreve has three other living children besides Sheridan and Jane: are A. B. Shreve, Petersburg; Arnold Shreve, Streby; and Mrs. Ida Getz, Pansy; forty grandchildren and fifteen great-grandchildren.

Sunday, all her children and several of her grand and great-grandchildren held a birthday dinner for her at her home.

Petersburg Briefs

Mrs. W. T. Moomau entertained with four tables of bridge at her home on Highland avenue in honor of her guest, Mrs. Helen Hatcher Youngstown, Ohio. Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Moomau attended school together several years ago in New York city and nursed in King's Daughters hospital, New York, after their graduation.

Mrs. H. S. Judy entertained the Petersburg Bridge club at her home on North Main street last evening.

Petersburg Personals

Misses Mary Cowger and Anna Lee Hull returned yesterday from Shepherdstown, W. Va., where they attended the homecoming.

Mrs. W. R. Sollars has gone to Philadelphia, Pa., to visit her sister.

W. E. Hill, who has been operating the Fox and Ox camp, during the summer months in Petersburg Gap, is closing the camp this week and will go to Manatee, Fla., where he will spend the winter with Mrs. Hill.

Clifton Shobe, Patterson Creek, W. Va., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Plauger.

Mrs. Ernest Whitlock is assisting in Ebert's five and ten cent store as a clerk.

Miss Anna Grace Feaster went to the Rockingham Memorial hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., along with Mrs. Eston Feaster, and both were operated on this morning for appendicitis.

Henderson Raps Byron in Talk At Frostburg

Cumberlander Scores Democrat's Vote against Dies Investigation

FROSTBURG, Oct. 23 (Special) —Col. George Henderson, of Cumberland, former chairman of the Republican State Central Committee for Allegany county, delivered a stirring address before the Young Men's Republican club of Frostburg this evening, in which he accused Representative William D. Byron of being the only Maryland congressman who refused to vote for an appropriation to continue the work of the Dies committee, which was doing its best to uncover "fifth columnists," many of whom are now office-holders in Washington under the New Deal.

All the congressmen representing Maryland districts, he said, voted for the appropriation, with the exception of Byron.

Should Defeat Byron

This fact, Henderson declared, should be revealed to every voter in the Sixth congressional district, and that vote alone should be enough to defeat Byron and elect Walter Johnson, his Republican opponent.

Henderson went on to say that A. Charles Stewart properly referred to Byron Monday night in a radio broadcast from Washington as "the little man who wasn't there" when it came to voting during his two years in office.

But, added Colonel Henderson, he was there when the Dies committee appropriation was up for consideration and he voted against continuing the investigation of "fifth columnists."

Hits Shoe Handout

Henderson also mentioned the shoes being distributed at the Savage River dam, declaring that these shoes were left over from the World war and were in storage for twenty-two years as military supplies. The fact, he declared, that they were brought out three weeks before a national election is "one of the most bare-faced pieces of political trickery ever put over in the state."

Henderson referred, too, to the Gallup poll, stating that he had never met a voter who had received a ballot for the Gallup poll. But, admitting that the poll is genuine, he said it was lately showing a trend in favor of the Republican candidate.

The speaker added that another poll taken by Emil Hurja, who gave Landon only two states in 1936, indicated that Willkie will win the election, possibly by a landslide.

Raps Lack of Defense

He condemned the Roosevelt administration for what he described as its failure to build up an adequate defense program in the past seven years and lauded Wendell Willkie as "the man who understands the importance of production," which he said is the vital necessity of the hour.

Henderson urged the election of Willkie and McNary, Harry W. Nice for United State Senate, and Walter Johnson for House of Representatives.

The meeting was attended by Walter Johnson, of Montgomery county; Julius Renninger, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee for Garrett county; Lancelot Jacques, Republican leader of Washington county; Francis Sanders and David Brann, of Oakland; and a large delegation from Cumberland.

Mrs. I. M. Wertz, Hagerstown, was also here in the interest of the Johnson candidacy, but did not attend the meeting.

Burglary Probed

State and city police are investigating a robbery discovered this morning at the American store, in the Gross building, East Main street, by Manager Stanley Hawkins, who found the iron safe moved from the main store to a rear warehouse room where it was pried open and the cash contents taken.

Entrance to the building was gained through a cellar door leading to the back yard. Once in the cellar, the robbers cut a hole in the door leading from the cellar to the rear of the main floor storeroom.

Pins were removed from the hinges of the safe and over $100 in cash stolen. A check of the stock is being taken to determine if any merchandise was stolen.

The robbery was carried out so quietly that occupants of the second floor of the building were not awakened. State Police secured fingerprints from the door of the safe, but no other clues were reported found.

Frostburg Briefs

The annual masquerade party of the Gleaners Sunday school class of First Methodist church will be held tomorrow (Thursday) night, at the home of Mrs. William B. Yates, East Main street. Mrs. Lloyd Stevens and Mrs. Howard Kinney are chairmen of the committees in charge of the affair. Each member may bring a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hager, Borden Mines, announce the birth of a daughter October 14.

Frostburg Lodge No. 348, Loyal Order of Moose, will hold a class initiation Sunday afternoon, the program commencing at 2:30 o'clock at Moose hall, East Main street.

Hyndman Church Plans Special Program Sunday

Temperance To Be Theme of Playlet at Central Christian Church

HYNDMAN, Pa., Oct. 23 — International Temperance Sunday will be observed at Central Christian church during the Sunday school hour Sunday. A committee consisting of Mrs. Hiram N. Van Voorhis, Mrs. William T. Albright and Mrs. William W. Stahlman, is training a group of junior-age children for a special program to include a playlet entitled "The Sick Baby."

The cast will include Nancy Evans, Ridalee Shaffer, Joan Shaffer, Eileen Stahlman and John M. Van Voorhis.

Other features will be a trio by the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Carpenter and appropriate hymns.

Sunday School Meeting

Sunday School workers from all Hyndman churches are planning to attend a "county administrative conference" to be held at the Reformed church at Mann's Choice Saturday.

The program will begin at 3:45 p. m. and close at 9 p. m., with a recess at 5:30 p. m., when the ladies of the church will serve luncheon at a nominal price.

The Rev. Nobel B. Blackman, of the Hyndman Methodist church, the Rev. John Shope and Walter E. Myers, are among the speakers. A county executive meeting will be held at 6:30 p. m., while the conference is recessed.

Hallowe'en Decorations

Hyndman merchants are already starting to decorate their show-windows in anticipation of Hallowe'en and firemen's celebration that will occur here the same day and night.

One display that is attracting wide attention is that of Russell C. May's billiard parlor. In one window, appropriately garnished with autumn leaves and the like, he has three live Hungarian (ring-neck) pheasants—a cock and two hens. The rooster is in full plumage and presents a gay sight in contrast with the drab color of the females.

In the opposite window, setting off a display of shot-guns and ammunition, Mr. May has arranged several varieties of still life, consisting among other specimens, of the mounted heads of a ten-point buck and a doe; the entire life-like skin of a porcupine (quills and all) skillfully mounted by a taxidermist.

Triple Move

George Cook has purchased the Dr. Adam Miller property on Washington street and will move into it within the next few days. Dr. and Mrs. Miller moved yesterday into the commodious house they bought several months ago at Gravel Pit, which they remodeled and modernized.

The property on Clarence street that is being vacated by the Cook family, will be immediately occupied by Harry Clark and family. Mr. Clark is supervisor of B & O. trackage extending from Cumberland to Meyersdale.

Hyndman Personals

Mrs. Henry Temke returned home after spending several days with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Temke, Beaver Falls. Mr. Temke brought his mother to Hyndman and will remain here for a week's visit.

Mrs. Merton Marks, Pittsburgh, is visiting Mrs. Louise Wood and family, Clarence street.

Mrs. George Johnston, Hollidaysburg, is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Johnstown, Clarences treet.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Madore left today for Sarasota, Fla., where they will spend the winter, as has been their custom for the past several seasons.

Posts $500 Bond

BECKLEY, W. Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—Bond of $500 was posted by Harry E. Moran of New York, president of the Leccony Smokeless Fuel Company, yesterday pending his trial on charges of embezzling $666.75 in United Mine Workers union dues. No trial date has been set.

WOULD AID NAVY

Mrs. Dorothy Anderson

One of the few American women holding a master's license for seagoing tugs, Mrs. Dorothy Anderson, above, of San Francisco, Cal., has offered the use of her tug, the Ethel A., to the navy for use in minesweeping duty.

Moorefield P-TA Committee Heads Are Appointed

School Group Sets Up $125 Budget, Discusses Hot Lunch Project

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 23—A tentative budget of $125 was set up at the first meeting of the Moorefield Parent-Teacher Association in the library of the new high school building Monday night. Mrs. Robert Wilson, elected president at the May meeting, was in the chair.

Mrs. Wilson appointed chairmen of standing committees for the year as follows: Health, Mrs. H. G. Muntzing; safety, Corp. H. R. Shields; program, Miss Mildred Fowler; membership, Mrs. C. M. Bennett; home mothers, Mrs. H. M. Calhoun; hot lunch, Mrs. Boyd McWhorter; playground, Raymond Dispanet; beauty pageant, Miss Mary Frances Guthrie; publicity, Mrs. R. B. Fisher; literary, P. W. Clarke; hospitality, Mrs. S. L. Dodd; entertainment and social, Mrs. W. D. Grafton and Mrs. Glenn Bergdoll.

The hot lunch project, which the P-TA co-sponsors with the Board of Education, was discussed at great length, as the town council has announced that rent must be paid for the use of the basement rooms in the town hall, where the lunches were served last year. The P-TA has no funds for this purpose, and it was decided that if money must be raised for this project, it would be better to use it for outfitting rooms in the basement of the graded school building rather than paying rent, as these rooms could be used year after year. Mrs. McWhorter, Mrs. Edna Hott and Mrs. Seymour Dasher were appointed a committee to look into this matter and see what is necessary.

E. B. Simmons was appointed to have charge of the sale of tuberculosis sales.

Lions See Pictures

Miss Ollie B. McKinney, home demonstration agent for Hardy county, entertained the Moorefield Lions club Monday night with a showing of colored scenes of Hardy county and Camp Pinnacle, the county 4-H camp.

The civic improvement committee reported on the findings of A. H. Wessel, district engineer for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, who inspected several prospective sites for an airport in Moorefield. Wessel approved several locations but said aid from the government was not available unless the sites were purchased and given to a government department.

The club decided to repoint and repair the old Moorefield Chamber of Commerce signs which are stationed at the town limits of Moorefield. This work will be done in the near future.

County Agent S. L. Dodd reported on the four-county meeting of South Branch Valley civic clubs with the officials of the phone company. Some progress has been made in the negotiations and a meeting will be held in the near future for specific recommendations.

Agency Sold

The sale of Thomas Chevrolet by Ralph Ours and M. B. Thomas to Valley Chevrolet was made public this week. The transfer will become effective November 1. John F. Workmeister, Cumberland, will become the new owner and manager of the Chevrolet agency.

Mr. Workmeister and his associates have been negotiating for the auto agency for the past few weeks. He will move to Moorefield into the new house adjacent to the garage. The personnel at the business will remain the same for the most part.

M. B. Thomas, present manager of the concern, stated he was undecided whether he would remain in Moorefield.

Henderson-Warden

The marriage of Miss Frances Virginia Warden, of Wardensville, to Clio Chase Henderson, of Richwood and Mathias, which took place in Ashland, Ky., October 12, has been announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Warden, Wardensville. The Rev. Walter Stock officiated at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church in Ashland.

The bride, who wore wine crepe with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of roses, was attended by Mrs. Blanche Doddrill as matron of honor and Miss B. Rose Doddrill, Huntington, and Miss Kathleen Thornburg, Portsmouth, Mass., as bridesmaids. Charles Franklin Doddrill, Huntington, was best man.

Mrs. Henderson, after graduating from Wardensville high school, was a student at West Virginia university and Shepherd college and is now a teacher in the graded school at Wardensville.

Mr. Henderson attended Glenville State Teachers college and is a graduate of Marshall college. At present, he is educational advisor at Camp Hardy.

On Wings of Song

By MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:

AFTER rescuing an intoxicated stranger from a night club when he was about to be thrown out for creating a disturbance,

KIT REILLY allows him to stay overnight in her room while she stays with

FRAN LE MAZE, a veteran vaudeville performer who is her friend and partner in a song and dance act. Next morning Kit severely reprimands the stranger for claiming to be VANCE HEALEY, noted radio sports announcer, whom she has regarded as an idol since he was a well-known college athlete. After lolly telling him to be careful that he doesn't get the announcer in trouble by pretending to be Healey, she sends him on his way.

CHAPTER SIX

"IS IT THE same headache?"

The voice was small, hesitant.

Vance Healey put his bromo down on the soda counter very carefully and gave her the ready smile he had cultivated for his public since he had become a celebrity. It might have been, he reflected philosophically, except that he didn't know which one she meant. Or for that matter, who she was.

He looked for a full moment into the bluest eyes, framed in the longest lashes he had ever seen. They stood out with a kind of cruel emphasis in a heart-shaped face that was pinched and shadowed about a small, straight nose.

There was something about its contour that tugged at the edges of his memory. Experimentally he said, "No, this is a brand new one, due to too much wind going down the bay this morning. What are you doing up here?"

Up here was the drug store in the Consolidated Broadcasting building.

It was obvious that for the moment at least she was having a meager meal, and from the way she scooped the last drop of uninviting soup from her bowl, it was a badly needed one.

"Trying to get an audition," she said, and added succinctly, "Again."

If he hadn't had the feeling that he ought to remember her, he would have given her a friendly grin, picked up her check and bowed himself out with some remark about its being nice to see her. But there was that something—

He rubbed his chin with a gesture to induce thought and the thing came back to him in a flash.

This was the youngster who'd got him out of the jam that last night when he'd made a fool of himself almost three weeks before. The kid from Luigi's.

Momentarily he felt ashamed before her obvious poverty that he hadn't offered to do something for her, hadn't made an effort to find out if there was something he could do. The situation had been important enough from his angle to warrant it. Remembering the situation, he remembered that there had been something in her very impersonality that had been marked with gallantry. Something that would have made any effort at payment awkward.

"Singer?" he asked. Her shabby coat, her cleaned plate embarrassed him. If she were a man, he could slip her a five-spot and forget it.

"I used to hope so."

He picked up her check, wishing he could say something to make her smile.

"Busy, Larry?"

"Not until six. Anything I can do for you?"

"Yeah, I want you to hook up a mike. This is a friend of mine." He turned to Kit. "I want to hear how she sounds on a mike. Come on, youngster." He took Kit's arm.

"I'll be up in ten minutes, 5-F," Widmer said.

They rode up five floors and got off on a studio floor. Vance called a couple of people sweetheart and waved to an auburn-haired youth in beautiful flannels. "Vallee," he said to Kit, "with the Major."

It could have been the president with General Pershing. Kit had eyes only for Vance as he pushed his way through swinging doors, held them for her, then made his way to a microphone in the empty studio.

She found her voice.

"I wish I could find a couple of words. I've got a lot of things to say."

He was adjusting a microphone to her height. "Most people have when they see this little gadget."

"It isn't the microphone," she said. "It's conscience. Also gratitude. I wish I could think of something to say to tell you what this means to me."

Vance took a large envelope away from her. "Want to embarrass me? Don't forget that I owe you a good turn. What's your name?"

"Katherine Reilly. People call me Kit. . . . Look, Mr. Healey, I guess I'll have to say it . . ."

"Okay, Kit. Shoot!"

She said simply, "I didn't believe it was you. I wouldn't have talked to you the way I did if I had. Then, when I saw you today and I knew it was . . ."

"If you're worried about the way you talked to me, you can forget it. It did me a lot of good. The point is, would you have rescued me if you'd known?"

Kit thought about it. "I don't think I'd have dared."

"Then I'm glad you didn't know. It was a noble deed. I hope I can do something for you. . . . Got some music in this envelope?"

She said she had. She said also that she played her own accompaniment unless he'd rather.

"I'll have to listen in the control room," he answered, running through her music. Variety was not lacking in her numbers; there were a couple of operatic arias, a hot blues number and an old ballad or two.

He selected one. "Try the Puccini first, Galli Curci."

Widmer came through, waved and disappeared back of a heavy door, to emerge to view again back of the controls in the glassed-in room at the end of the studio.

Kit sat down at the piano and Vance fixed the mike to take her voice. He gave her an encouraging smile and told her to watch his signal.

She ran through her number on the piano, saw his lifted hand and began to sing. Untrained, untried, her voice was pitiably thin in the classic.

Vance sat far back in the control room where she couldn't see him.

"Not so good," he said.

"Friend of yours?" Widmer inquired, without moving his eyes from the wavering needle before him.

"No . . . yes," Healey corrected.

Kit finished. Healey pressed the button on the talkback. His voice came into the studio.

"Kit, let's try the blues number."

She smiled at him uncertainly and struck a low note on the piano, throwing back her head the way she'd seen it done. She put all the tricks she had picked up into her voice. But it was bad.

"That be enough?" Widmer asked without turning, when she had finished.

"No." Vance replied curtly. Again his finger pressed down on the button that opened the talkback. "Let's have the ballad."

Kit struck a cord and opened with the soft tones of the familiar ballad, "Love's Old Sweet Song." She sang it naturally, her voice free of the self-learned tricks, the technical errors of the others. Low and soft, with a note of tenderness, her voice came through with a kind of husky, hesitant sweetness.

Widmer's mouth went down, his eyebrows went up. "Not bad," he said approvingly.

"Good enough!"

"For what?"

"Good enough to give her a shot at the Sembler contest trials."

Violation of Neutral Territory Charged at Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—A formal protest was registered by the United States today over the bombing of American oil properties in the neutral kingdom of Saudi Arabi during the vaunted attack of Italian bombers on British petroleum sources in the Persian gulf last weekend.

The protest, the first of its kind during the present war, was delivered to the Italian ambassador, Prince Colonna, by A. A. Berle, Jr., assistant secretary of state.

It was not disclosed whether a demand was made for compensation for damages but the protest was understood to have been based chiefly on an alleged violation of neutral territory.

No mention was made of the bombing of oil properties owned by the same American interests on Bahrein island, a British protectorate off the mainland of Saudi Arabia.

Damage to the Saudi Arabian properties, which are owned by the Standard Oil Company of California and the Texas Corporation, was said to have been slight and no casualties resulted.

The long distance flight of the Italian bombers was hailed in Italy as one of the outstanding air achievements of the war.

President Says

Mr. Roosevelt denied what he called "the fantastic misstatement" by Republican leaders that the government had entered secretly into agreement with foreign nations.

"I give you this most solemn assurance," he said: "there is no secret treaty, no secret obligation, no secret commitment, no secret understanding in any shape or form, direct or indirect, with any other government, or any other nation in any part of the world, to involve this nation in any war or for any other purpose."

He said he stood on the platform of the Democratic party, which he quoted as follows:

Stands on Platform

"We will not participate in foreign wars and we will not send our army, naval or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas except in case of attack."

His closing words were on the same theme.

"It is for peace I have labored; and it is for peace I shall labor all the days of my life."

The president contended that techniques of propaganda which had been created and developed in dictator countries had been imported into the campaign.

"It is the very simple technique of repeating and repeating falsehoods, with the idea that by constant repetition and with no contradiction, the misstatements will finally come to be believed," he said.

Dictators have had great success with this technique, Mr. Roosevelt continued, but he could not believe that in America — "where the radio and a part of the press remain open to both sides"—repetition of "deliberate misstatements" would ever prevail.

Declaring falsifications were being spread to create in the minds of the people doubt of each other, doubt of their government, and doubt of the purposes of their democracy," he added that they would not "be scared by this blitzkrieg of incendiary bombs."

Denies Specific Charges

Mr. Roosevelt said that untruthful campaign discussion of public issues was essential to the American form of government, but that it was "an entirely different thing for any party or any candidate to state, for example, that the president of the United States telephoned to Mussolini and Hitler to sell Czechoslavakia down the river; of that the unfortunate unemployed of the nation are going to be driven into concentration camps; or that the social security funds of the nation will not be in existence when the workers of today become old enough to apply for them; or that the election of the present government means the end of American democracy within four years."

"They know, and we know," he added, "that all of these statements are false."

Mr. Roosevelt said the charge that his administration had "not made one man a job" was made by "the very same men who must bear the responsibility" for inaction in 1932.

"The tears for the laboring man and woman now being shed in this campaign come from those same Republican leaders who had a chance to prove their love for labor in 1932—and missed it," he declared.

Goes Back to 1932

"Back in 1932, these leaders were willing to let the workers starve if they could not get a job.

"Back in 1932, they were not willing to guarantee collective bargaining.

"Back in 1932, they met the demands of unemployed veterans with fire and troops.

"Back in 1932, they raised their hands in horror at the thought of fixing a minimum wage or maximum hours for labor; they never gave one thought to such things as pensions for old age or insurance for the unemployed.

"In 1940, eight years later, what a different tune is played by them! It is a tune played against a sounding board of election day. It is a tune with overtones which whisper 'Votes, votes, votes.'"

The president said "the affection of these Republican leaders for the laboring man also rose to a high pitch" in the 1936 campaign, but that after election day "they and their friends did all that they could in Congress, before administrative bodies, and in the courts, and in the press, to beat these measures down into the ground."

His Figures On Employment

He said the "plain facts" were that there were now 9,000,000 more men and women employed in private industry than there were in March 1933. In the month of August, he added, more than 400,000 were added to private payrolls; in September another 500,000.

Declaring that the total number of bank failures for the entire seven years of his administration had been less than the number in any single one of the preceding ten years, Mr. Roosevelt continued:

"And yet there are some banks now using money to advertise, or to send letters to their depositors, hinting that unless this administration is defeated, the deposits of their banks will be in danger. This is sheer intimidation to blackjack the election, and to return the financial control of the government to the very forces which had nearly wrecked the nation."

He said Republican leaders make an "unpardonable falsification about our economy" when they "talk about American business—how it cannot make a profit; how little confidence it has in this administration, and how this administration hates business."

Corporation profits were a minus quantity in 1932," Mr. Roosevelt declared, corporations as a whole showing losses of almost $4,000,000,000 that year.

By now, he added, that deficit has been wiped out and corporations are reporting profits of $4,000,000,000 a year.

New Deal and Business

"If it is true that the New Deal is the enemy of business," he added, "and that the Republican leaders, who brought business to the brink of ruin in 1932, are the friends of business—then I can only say that American business should continue to be saved from its friends."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had to laugh when he read last Sunday in the financial section of the New York Times—"a paper which is reputed not to love me too much"—an article by an editor who said: "Dreams of business flat on its back must come from smoking campaign cigars or else the speakers are talking about some other country."

"Wouldn't it be nice if the editorial writers of the Times could get acquainted with their own business experts?" the president asked.

While national youth clubs in many communities listened at meetings arranged especially to hear his address by radio, Mr. Roosevelt said the administration proposed "in the interests of justice and in the interests of national defense" to broaden the work and extend the benefits of the civilian conservation corps and the National Youth Administration.

"We are determined during the next four years," he said, "to make our objective—work for every young man and woman in America—a living fact."

Factory Output at Top

The president said that the output of the countrys factories and mines was now almost thirteen per cent greater than at the peak of 1929.

"It is at the highest level ever recorded," he added.

Declaring the time when "the prosperity of the nation is measured in terms of the stock ticker had passed," he continued:

"For the American people as a whole—the great body of its citizens—the standard of living has increased well above that of 1929.

This year, Mr. Roosevelt said, far more butter, more cheese, more meat and more canned goods would be placed on the tables of America than "in the luxurious year of 1929."

The president arranged to return to his special train immediately after his address and to return overnight to Washington, where he will speak by telephone tomorrow afternoon to the New York Herald-Tribune forum in New York city.

During the day, Mr. Roosevelt drove through streets lined with tens of thousands of spectators to nearby plants manufacturing defense equipment.

Cheered by Thousands

For mile after mile through Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., men, women and children stood three, four and five feet deep along the president's route. Cheers rolled along through the throng as the motorcade passed, and the way through Philadelphia was soon littered with confetti and waste paper thrown from windows.

To thousands of workers in overalls at the New York Shipbuilding Company's plant in Camden, Mr. Roosevelt said through a loud speaker system:

"I want to convey to you my thanks and the thanks of the United States government for the great work you are doing in this yard. These ships are not just on order but are being built.

"The ships, thanks to all you are doing, are four to six months ahead of time. They are being built, as you know, not to go to war but to keep us at peace. So all I can say is, thanks, and keep up the good work and keep up the speed."

Mr. Roosevelt's statement that the warships were not being built for war but for peace came within twenty-four hours after Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, had said that, if the president's promises to keep the country out of war were no better than some others he had made, then "the boys" might as well be on transports now.

Pleads with

which dictatorships take root and grow to power."

"We fail to see that the identical process which wrecked the liberties of Europe has been going on here in America right before our eyes," he continued. "We fail to recognize the sealthy concentration of power that has characterized the progress of the New Deal.

"We do not recognize it for what it is: a trend, partly accidental, partly deliberate, toward the establishment of state domination over our lives."

Gigantic Pork Barrel

Willkie said that the chief executive had obtained from Congress "blank checks" totalling more than $16,000,000,000, and added that "he and those who surround him have used this great fund as a gigantic pork barrel."

Declaring that "the New Deal leader has bought Congressional support by rewarding his friends and punishing his enemies in both houses of Congress," the nominee asserted that powers of the executive, judicial and legislative branches had been concentrated in a group of presidential appointees who "have boldly used those powers."

"Once we have submitted to the domination of our economic life by an all-powerful central government, individual liberty is gone," he said. "Without economic freedom, no freedom is safe, neither that of collective bargaining, nor the press, nor of the churches, nor even of family relations."

Noting that this was "no-third-term day," Willkie said that in seven and a half years the New Deal has declared 67 "emergencies," and added:

Seeks Indefinite Term

"Government by emergency soon finds that in the public interests, all dissent must be suppressed. The forms of democracy may remain intact, but the spirit within these forms sickens and dies."

The New Deal, the nominee asserted, "asks us to keep the president in office indefinitely."

Thus, he said, "it has laid down a challenge—a challenge to everything for which our constitution stands—a challenge to everything which has made America the land of hope and the land of opportunity.

"Let us pick up that challenge and turn it back. x x x the excessive concentration of power over the domestic life of the nation must be checked."

Willkie addressed the forum in the Waldorf Astoria hotel shortly after listening to President Roosevelt's radio address from Philadelphia. Mr. Roosevelt is scheduled for one of the final forum talks tomorrow night.

Wants To Face Roosevelt

Before starting his prepared address, Willkie said that the forum had contributed to public discussion.

"You know, I believe in public discussion, even in face to face discussion," he added. "When I believe another man has falsified the record, I like to look him face to face and say so."

Willkie contended that the chief executive had given the impression in his Philadelphia speech "that we were in the campaign of 1932" and had not discussed the issues of 1940.

"As I listened over the radio this evening to the glowing report made by the present third term candidate of the prosperous condition of the United States," he added, "I could not help wondering how under such circumstances there could be any indispensable man."

Petain

he might set up a new government and ignore that of Marshal Petain, who was represented as reluctant to remain as chief of state in any regime cooperating closely with Rome and Berlin.

Laval among Leaders

Leaders of the projected Paris government would include not only Laval as chief of state in Petain's shoes, but also Admiral Darlan, whose long-standing anti-British attitude was reported to have developed into a frank desire to place what is left of his fleet in the fight against Britain.

Any such Laval cabinet could also bring in six French leaders who carefully have stayed away from Vichy in recent months and who have urged publicly cooperation with Germany as the only way out for France.

The battle lines at Vichy, informed Frenchmen said, were sharply drawn following a turbulent cabinet session last night and Laval's meeting yesterday with Hitler somewhere in France, presumably Paris.

Weighing heavily against the formation of a government pledged to cooperation with the axis, it was reported, is the overwhelming opposition of the French people, including active and demobilized soldiers, to fighting their former British Allies. Any such move, it was feared here, would stir internal trouble in France.

Japan Said

sufficiently substantial to invoke the "escape" clause.

Foreign official sources in Shanghai said they could not confirm the "escape" clause reports and received them with great reserve.

May Be Japanese Ruse

Some officials said they were inclined to believe that the Japanese were circulating the reports deliberately as a propaganda maneuver in an effort to induce Washington to divert its attention from the Far East.

The suggested the possibility that, Japan's belligerent blasts of two weeks ago having failed signally to "frighten" the United States, Japan now was attempting to create the impression in the United States that the treaty "doesn't mean what it says."

Other informed sources expressed the belief that if the treaty contained escape provisions for Japan it probably included similar provisions for other signatories.

If such loopholes actually exist, they would confirm the first impression here that the signatories to the tri-partite agreement would fulfill its military clause only if it suited their respective convenience if circumstances should arise which call for invoking the clause.

Charges President

York on a four-day eastern campaign trip. Smith told reporters that "war is the important issue" in the presidential campaign. He said he shared "a general belief among people that the New Deal is trying to get us into war."

The Academy Auditorium in which Smith spoke was crowded to its seating capacity and there were several hundred standing. The address was carried nationally by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

The crowd called for a speech from Mrs. Willkie when she took a seat on the platform a few minutes before Smith was to speak. Her husband was campaigning elsewhere in New York.

Mrs. Willkie Pleased

The chairman explained she was "very nervous" and had requested him to say she was very pleased at the reception she received.

Smith recalled that he had spoken eight years ago in the same auditorium to advocate the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose 1932 campaign promises, he asserted, "went with the wind."

"I was amused," Smith said, "and I want you to share it with me, when I read in the paper that the New Deal publicity bureau was active with the smear pot in an effort to create an atmosphere that made Wendell Willkie a bigot. Nothing could be more stupid. x x x

"When he was a delegate to the 1924 convention in Madison Square Garden, the convention controlled entirely by the Klan, what happened? He voted for me for the nomination for the presidency."

Goes Back to 1932

Smith declared that if President Roosevelt had stood on the same platform eight years ago and told the audience that if he were elected and the Supreme Court did not see everything as he did that he "would send them back to the horse and buggy days," everyone in the auditorium would have got up and left.

"But strange as it seems," Smith added "that's exactly what happened."

Smith called Roosevelt "the indispensable man—indispensable to the recipients of political patronage and his political faith, and that is the group that made up the so-called Democratic Convention that was held at Chicago, when, incidentally, the name of Jefferson was booed.

"Of course that convention drafted its candidate. Drafted, eh? bunk and baloney!

"As a matter of fact he was the candidate all along and used the power and patronage of his office to demand the nomination at the hands of the party leaders.

"Furthermore, he (Roosevelt) refused to let convention select the vice-president. He said 'no, I will do that. I will save the convention the trouble'.

"And the other day he said, 'democracy is safe while we have free elections.'

"Do you know," Smith shouted, "that that is exactly what Hitler said to the German people? The only difference between him saying it and Hitler is that Hitler says it in German.

"Try and get him out of power! Nothing doing!"

Britain Reports

seem, was "one of the great victories of the war."

Balfour, in a speech, cited the growing internationalism of the RAF — mentioning that United States, Polish, Czech and French pilots daily were fighting alongside British aviators—and declared that never was there a force more challenging to "the Nazi evil."

Confident of Victory

"London," he said, "is going through the ordeal by battle with much material damage to buildings and property. But Germany cannot win the war in this way.

"Our offensive raids into Germany aim at hitting the enemy in their vital military, naval and industrial spots so as to cripple their war effort.

"The German aim is to break the morale of our civil population. Just as long as they neglect military objectives to concentrate on these methods, then just so long will they be battering uselessly against the unbreakable spirit of our people, while our own force is engaged in tasks which will bring us toward victory."

Despite the restrained exultance of the air ministry's narrative of the broken attempt at invasion, official sources reiterated the customary British warning:

"The threat persists and will persist as long as (German) naval units, barges, troops and air forces are concentrated along the extensive coastline of the enemy-occupied countries."

Knew Plans from Start

The ministry put Sept. 5 as the day the mightiest British effort was begun against the invasion that did not materialize, and it was declared that from the very start the British knew the German plans.

"Even now," the ministry said, "the story can be told only in part. Until lately it would have been extremely unwise to let the ehemy know how much we knew of his preparations and of the effect on them of RAF attacks."

Thus hedged, this was the gist of the ministry's account.

British pilots brought back stories of concentrations of German troops and aircraft "in every available port of harbor," and from Narvik to Bordeaux the RAF went out on a continuing mission of harassment and vigilance. Each day, meantime, saw more and more imposing arrivals (of Nazi men and materials) until "hundreds of barges and other equipment were assembled in Antwerp, Calais, Dunkerque, Ostend, Nieuport and Havre.

The Germans were getting ready —with small warships, with 150-foot self-propelled barges each able to carry two trainloads of men. They had commandered every available barge of more than 500 tons and great numbers of workmen fitted out these craft to carry tanks and guns readily.

At hand, too, were German submarines. At one time and in a single harbor—Havre—forty-five big merchant ships lay ready. Inland, the Germans quickly threw up new aircraft shelters; railroad trains sped urgently back and forth between Germany and the low countries.

While the ROF went on with its tireless bombing campaign, the British navy joined in briefly, with a bombardment of the port of Cherbourg.

German Base Attacked

Then followed what the ministry termed widespread damage to all the bases at Dunkerque, at Brest, at Calais, all along the coast.

The day and hour at which the Germans gave up was not mentioned; the ministry's inference was that the plan to invade died slowly and anti-climatically in the minds of the German command.

The assertion that twenty per cent of the Germans' productive capacity had been touched by British bombers, in a long, continuing action paralleling the counter- offensive against invasion, was attributed by the ministry to an informed foreign industrialist, and these were among the specific claims made directly or indirectly:

That the Germans had been forced to plan the "rebuilding" of Hamburg, their greatest seaport and site of warship construction facilities.

That there had been much damage to Berlin railway facilities.

That there was open criticism in Germany of the effectiveness of German anti-aircraft guns.

Dirty weather kept British bombers grounded last night, and again today the Dover strait was covered by mist, and there was heavy rain.

Kennedy Believed

Likely To Campaign

The article states that, well aware of Kennedy's attitude, the president has done everything possible to keep the ambassador at his post at least until after the election, but that Kennedy evidently is determined to have his say while it may still have some influence on the vote—hence his return at this time.

(At Washington Secretary Hull said he had no information on Kennedy's plans. Hull said he had no further information since he announced a few days ago that Kennedy was coming home and that as far as he knew the ambassador would go back to his post.)

Hemisphere United, Welles Declares

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 — Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles today characterized western hemispheric solidarity as a "reality" and asserted, at the same time, that defense of the United States must involve an ability to "repel an attack against, or an invasion of, any part of the new world."

Speaking before the Baltimore Advertising club, Welles, who toured European belligerent capitals for the administration only a few months ago, directed most of his talk to the relations of American nations.

Efforts to cement the relationships of American States "long ago" foresaw the potential dangers of "forces of military conquest and social revolution."

Because of this, he said, the United States co-operated fully with twenty other American republics in creating a continental friendship which would mean "a solid front in the moment of crisis."

Editor Apologizes For Man Who Threw Eggs At Wendell Willkie

CHICAGO, Oct. 23. (AP)—Under the heading "it shouldn't happen here," the Daily Times, which is supporting Mr. Roosevelt for re-election, ran on the front page of all its editions today a picture of Wendell Willkie, his face and shoulders spattered with egg. The caption added:

"To which all Chicagoans, outraged by such an act as the one pictured, will subscribe wholeheartedly, mindful of the fact there is no place for Hooliganism in the Democratic system. x x x

"Unanimous public sentiment is: 'Deepest apologies to you, Mr. Willkie. The whole town is genuinely sorry and ashamed for the action of this SINGLE ONE of its three and a half million citizens.'—The Editor."

Child Needs A Spiritual Uplift Today

Church and Sunday School Should Prove of Great Value, Writer Says

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Last summer I attended a Sunday school in a rural area where ninety-six children were present. This is about the average attendance the year round. Except for one small room for the tots, all the classes meet at different places in the main auditorium. Yet they do not disturb one another much. Often such Sunday schools are far more alive than those with expansive and numerous separate rooms. One of the most pathetic visits to a Sunday school I ever made was to a large city church, several months ago. It had facilities for 1,500 persons, but fewer than three hundred were in the building. I am convinced that this rural Sunday school and community church (where my wife attended as a child and later was teacher and superintendent) has had a most wholesome effect on this fine rural neighborhood.

Spiritual Education Imperative

Perhaps there has been no time in the history of our nation when church and Sunday school should prove of so great value for mental health, moral growth and spiritual uplift as right now. Looking about us at the world's woes from materialism, some of us at least see, in contrast, rich promise in things spiritual.

Year after year I grow more convinced of the abiding values in religious exercise and education.

Parents who see values in Sunday school will not just send their children. They will go with these children. In doing so they make the children feel that going is worth while. Besides, these parents get their own spiritual dynamos recharged. See, furthermore, the values to the family relationships when all together participate in this enterprise. When the whole family go together and go every Sunday, the child even in his teens rarely objects.

Need Better Teachers

I wish there were more good teaching in the Sunday school, with more opportunities of expression from the children and less preaching by the teacher. I wish there were more appeal to youths who play in bands and orchestras and sing in choirs at school to share in the music program of the Sunday school and church. In a certain mining town of Somerset County, Pa., a young high school music teacher with a vision wins scores of boys to his school choirs. I heard a hundred of these lads singing at a church service. Students from his classes sing in several churches of the home town and neighboring country places. It is a greater honor for a boy to make this choir than to make the football team. I am often inspired by the wonderful teachers I have met who are constantly educating their boys and girls to serve the community and enjoying doing so.

Solving Parent Problems

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T SEEK THE BREAK

AN EVEN three-three division of the six outstanding cards of a suit occurs less than half of the time under ordinary circumstances. It is still less likely when one of the opponents has been bidding some other suit or suits. Then that player probably is short in the unbid suit, his partner having length in it. That is true even when it is clear that a not-vulnerable player has been bidding his suit lengths merely to becloud the issue or to find a sacrific fit against your powerful cards.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 ♥	3 ♣	3 NT
Pass	4 ♦	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 NT

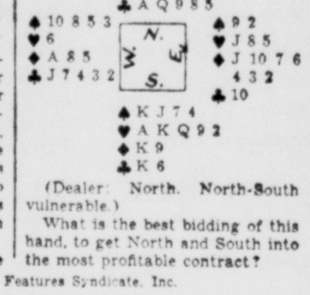

South failed to make his contract because of his playing for an even break in diamonds. After West led the spade 10, he counted up his tricks. Three in spades, two in hearts and seven in the minors would give him enough, as he figured. He was prepared to stand the loss of a trick in clubs if he could bring in four tricks in diamonds.

So South took the opening spade in dummy, then played the clubs cleverly. He read West's failure to lead the suit first bid by his psychic partner, clubs, as indicating West might have the K and would not wish to underlead it. So the declarer led the club 9 and played the 8 on it. Sure enough, West took this with the K and then led a second spade, the 6, to the K.

South thereupon took three club tricks and started on diamonds. The K was cashed, then the 8 led to the A. When East failed to follow suit, there was nothing more the declarer could do but rake in one more spade, two hearts and one more diamond. He had to give up a diamond at the end. Better figuring would have counted West for the diamond J and therefore would have dictated use of the A first, then the K. This would have marked the finesse of the 10, with the lead in the right hand to lead for it. By doing that, South would have made his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the best bidding of this hand, to get North and South into the most profitable contract?

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — Dr. Sam Derrick of the University of South Carolina, by way of enlarging vocabularies of his students, defined the word "pedestrian" for them.

"A pedestrian," he said, "is a man who has a wife, a daughter and one car." (Dr. Derrick has a wife, a daughter and one car.)

PRICE-FIXING IS LAID TO EYEGLASS TRADE

Groups and Persons Ruling 95% of Lens Business In Nation Are Indicted

FLEECING OF PUBLIC SEEN

Evidence Is Said to Show $20 Spectacles Could Be Sold Profitably For $7.50

A general system of price-fixing by which the cost of eye-glasses throughout the country has been kept unnecessarily high during the last decade was charged yesterday in four indictments handed up here by a Federal grand jury. The defendants include fourteen manufacturers, five wholesalers, three trade associations and twenty-one individuals.

These defendants, it was said, make and distribute 95 percent of all the eyeglass lenses sold in the United States, as well as most of the frames for them. Government attorneys who conducted the investigation that led to the indictments disclosed that they would be followed by the filing of two civil suits. The ultimate object is a lowering of the price to the public, it was said.

Heavy Overcharging Alleged

The indictments, charging violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, are based on allegations of price-fixing of goods sold in interstate commerce. The degree to which the ultimate cost to the consumer may have been inflated did not concern the investigators, it was said. However, one estimate was that a pair of eyeglasses selling for $20 might well bring a good profit if sold for $7.50.

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—A Durham cafe was crowded when a tall, bearded farmer demanded a 10-cent cut of chewing tobacco. A clerk finally heard the order, hastily grabbed a plug, rammed it into a sack and handed it to the farmer, who departed.

Two minutes later in stormed the farmer. In his hand he clutched a square block of chocolate candy.

Roosevelt's Talk For Annual Forum Will Be on Radio

Former President Hoover Will Be Heard from Columbus, O.

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—The New York Herald Tribune Forum closing tomorrow takes another top spot in radio interest with the scheduled address by President Roosevelt for 4:45 over MBS-WOR, CBS-WABC, and NBC-WJZ.

Theme for the closing session is "Saving Democracy in the Western World" and an earlier address by William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, on "Warning from the Old Democracies" will be aired by Mutual from 3:45 to 4.

Hoover Scheduled

Herbert Hoover is scheduled for forty-five minutes tomorrow night over NBC-WJZ from 9:45. Hoover will be speaking from Columbus, O.

Two movies get special radio billing tomorrow in different broadcasts. Raymond Gram Swing and Wythe Williams, MBS news commentators, from 10:15 to 10:30 over the coast-to-coast chain will discuss the new newsreel document of war, "World in Flames."

Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, and Paulette Goddard will be among the screen stars playing in the radio version of "Northwestern Mounted Police" over Mutual from 8:30 to 9 just before the movie is premiered in Chicago.

Aviation Feature

Columbia's Vox Poppers will give listeners a first-hand account of life in a reserve aviation camp when they visit Floyd Bennett airport.

Green Says Newspaper Guild Is Controlled by Anti-American Forces

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP)—William Green, addressing an organizational meeting for a National A. F. L. Union of Newspaper Workers here, declared that the C. I. O. American Newspaper Guild "stands as an organization controlled by anti-American forces."

Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal speaker at the first conference of delegates from twenty A. F. L. newspaper locals, claiming to represent 1,500 members throughout the nation.

"Those who seized control of the American Newspaper Guild," Green said, "sought to use that organization for the furtherance of a supversive movement. Its leaders seek to substitute the Soviet form of government for the democratic form in this country."

Seized with Doubt

SPARTANSBURG, S. C. — A group of young fellows who went "on the wagon" here got in a doubtful frame of mind about the whole business when one of their number noticed a sign on the rear of a street sprinkler. The sign: "Caution. Sudden Stop."

The Rural Electrification administration supplies more than 568,000 consumers with electricity.

Volume Is Highest in Three Weeks; Rally on Upswing

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Steel, copper and rubber shares formed the vanguard of a broad stock market advance today, extending the lift which appeared in the previous session.

The volume of transactions was the highest in three weeks, totaling 807,040 shares compared with 535,730 yesterday.

As has been usual in recent sessions, celerity in trading only appeared on the upswing. When prices wavered from time to time during the day under the impact of profit-taking, the moments of sell-off were short and transactions narrow. Analysts ascribed the general rise to adjustment of holdings by traders. However, a small amount of "outside" business was reported by brokerage houses.

Supporting the advance in shares was a similar rise in bonds and an usually strong commodities market.

The most active risers among the shares included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Wheeling Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Douglas, United Aircraft, U. S. Gypsum, Johns-Manville, Air Reduction, Western Union, Santa Fe, Great Northern preferred and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

In the Curb, where 115,000 shares were traded compared with 87,000 yesterday, advances of a point or more were recorded for Jones & Laughlin steel, Ford Motor of Canada "B," Singer manufacturing, Pepperell and Sherwin Williams.

Theaters Today

'Golden Gloves' Called Film 'Blitzkrieg'

Theatergoers of Cumberland are experiencing a new and highly more acceptable form of "Blitzkrieg" since the present tenant of the Garden theater arrived yesterday. It's Paramount's thriller of the amateur prize ring called "Golden Gloves."

Of course, "Golden Gloves" has nothing whatever to do with the present conflict abroad, but it does contain its full share of action and as many moments of suspense.

Fashioning its theme from the "lightning wars" of the sports world's famous annual amateur boxing show, "Golden Gloves" tells the story of Bill Crane (Richard Denning), amateur boxer who ignores the pleas of his girl friend, Mary Parker (Jean Cagney) that he quit the ring. He refuses.

Mary's younger brother, Joey, eager to become a fighter like Bill, accepts a bout from Gardenia Joe Taggerty (J. Carrol Naish), without benefit of medical examination or proper weighing-in. Joey is killed in the brutally mis-matched fight.

Incensed by the death of his young friend, Bill enlists the aid of a crusading newspaper columnist Wally Matson (Robert Paige) and they decide to organize the "Golden Gloves," founded on clean sportsmanship and fair competition to counteract Taggerty's murderous tactics.

Taggerty, in an effort to discredit the new "Golden Gloves" and its organizers, frames a plan to enter a "ringer" or professional fighter to oppose Bill in the heavyweight division.

And then comes the "Blitzkrieg."

Lee Patrick and Roscoe Karns were reunited in matrimony at Warner Brothers when they were teamed for the second time as man and wife, for important roles with Wayne Morris and Rosemary Lane in "Ladies Must Live," now at the Garden.

Miss Patrick and Karns were seen as the scrappy couple in "Saturday's Children" which starred Garfield with Ann Shirley and Claude Rains.

'Ink Spots' and Band At Strand Saturday

The Strand theater will present for the first time in Cumberland Saturday the famous Decca recording artists, the Four "Ink Spots" and their NBC orchestra of fourteen pieces.

The Ink Spots have appeared four times this year at the Paramount theater in New York and almost nightly on the radio. They have also appeared twice in Washington and Baltimore this year.

The screen attraction is Sidney Toler, Sen Young and Joan Valerie in "Charlie Chan At The Wax Museum," a new Twentieth Century-Fox picture.

Showing today, for the last times is William Boyd in the new Hopalong story entitled "Stagecoach War" and Dick Foran and Peggy Moran in "The Mummy's Hand."

'Calling All Husbands' Is New Liberty Film

A picture with plenty of laughs, love and excitement will make its local bow at the New Liberty theater today when Warner Brothers' new film, "Calling All Husbands," opens.

Starring in the picture are George Tobias, Lucile Fairbanks and Ernest Truex. The film tells the story of a meek little man, played by Ernest Truex, whose wife Florence Bates' role is always nagging him. She never fails to remind him that she could have married a very wealthy gentleman named Oscar, portrayed by George Tobias. Her other pet dislike is for George Reeves, as the person who marries her daughter, played by Lucile Fairbanks, in spite of her objections.

Oscar turns out to be a crook who unsuccessfully tries to rob a department store and is forced to use Truex's house as a hideout when the police get hold on his trail. To everyone's amazement Truex floors him with a wild tackle and prevents him from escaping from the police. His wife is so impressed by his actions that she realizes her past attitude has been unfair and turns over a new leaf. From then on, Ernest gives the orders around the house and his wife becomes the meek one.

"Confessions of a Nazi Spy" is also on the program at the Liberty.

BATTLE OF THE SEXES

Cresaptown P-TA Hears Safety Talk

CRESAPTOWN, Oct. 23 — Bill Cramer was guest speaker at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting Monday night. His talk, on "Safety" was directed chiefly to schoolboy patrol members.

Thirty-five dollars from the association will be presented to the Health center to further its work.

The indoor circus, with real animals — dogs, ponies, and monkeys —which will be held November 8 in the school auditorium, sponsored by the association, was discussed.

First and second home-room prizes were awarded to Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Miss Agnes Laughlin.

Finland Becomes Wood-Burning Nation

HELSINKI (AP)—Finns, lacking native coal and short of money with which to buy large quantities abroad, conducted a wood-chopping campaign whereby 100,000 men cut 17,000,000 cubic meters or enough, if laid end to end as cordwood, to stretch from Finland to New York city and back again

Vacant lots, yards outside apartment houses, and storage space behind office buildings are piled high with the wood, which will be the chief fuel this winter.

Deep Massage Is Best Home Aid For Arthritis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We suggested yesterday that as a general platform and program for the care of the invalid with arthritis that there wasn't any use saying "He should go to a hospital," or "She should seek a proper climate." In the first place, the economic condition of the average patient does not permit that; in the second place, if all the arthritic invalids went to a climate there wouldn't be enough beds or rooms to house them.

We believe the best general treatment for arthritis is some form of physical therapy — manipulation, heat, exercise—and that it is possible to devise simple home-made methods of applying these. It is quite possible to teach a home mother to give good massage. Of course, it should be done at first under the direction of a doctor or professional masseur.

Before describing that further, however, I should like to emphasize the value of something entirely different from manipulation—which is rest. In one of O. Henry's stories he made quite a point of the part that all the doctors he went to see advised "Rest and exercise." It isn't quite as contradictory as it sounds. Alternation of rest and manipulation in arthritis, with more rest than manipulation, is a key to treatment.

Rest Important

And rest is certainly one of the God-given remedies that was designed to be carried out at home. It is one of the obvious things in treatment that is so close under our eyes it is overlooked. Of course, I mean rest in bed with the effected limb at rest—in a cast, if necessary. I don't mean the kind of rest that is implied in the sentence, "Now, grandpa, you rest right here and all you have to do is answer the telephone and the doorbell."

The kind of massage best suited to arthritis is kneading or deep rubbing of the muscles around the joint. Do not attempt to move the joint forcibly or when it is painful. A light, stroking movement over the joint itself may be used at times to relieve pain.

The deep kneading of the muscles in the region of the affected joint is designed to improve circulation, carrying away poisons and other deposits from the joints and making the muscles more active. There is always atrophy of the muscles around an arthritic joint, and they need stimulation. Since it is not always possibe for the arthritic to move the muscles himself on account of ankylosis of the joint, the massage performs an ideal function.

At first massage of an arthritic joint should be undertaken with wholesome respect, and performed gently and for short periods. As improvement occurs, the kneading may be done deeper and the time period lengthened. Flare-ups will occur sometimes and then the active manipulation must be stopped for a while. But there is always discernible a gradual and steady improvement if the procedure is properly carried out.

Questions and Answers

Y. T., Meriden, Conn.:—"Is cream of tartar of any value in the treatment of acne? If so, how is it used?"

Answer—Cream of tartar is potassium bitartrate. It is a simple cathartic salt. Its only value in the treatment of acne would be theoretically to rid the body of poisons or as a local application.

The Pony Express, when it was inaugurated in 1860, at first charged $5 for each letter of one-half ounce or less.

And She's Still Flying High

GOTHENBURG, Sweden (AP) — The story is told here of a 12-year-old girl for whom doctors gave up hope because of a persistent, apparently incurable cough.

As a last resort, the story goes, an aviator loaded her into a plane, flew for an hour at 4,000 feet and brought her back cured.

She Who Laughs Last

DRESDEN, Me.—Percy Kiersted, a logger, laughed when he saw a cow walk up to his car, stick her nozzle into his open tool kit and rummage around. But it wasn't so funny when Kiersted discovered that the cow had chewed up a wallet containing both his registration certificate and operator's license.

It's an Ill Wind, Etc.

LORIENT, France (AP)—An excellent harvest and the British blockade may enable Brittany apple growers to win back domestic markets usurped in normal times by California, Florida and Canada. The refrigerated imports, known as Canadian apples, are usually sold as dessert fruit in the winter months in France. Despite lack of transport, Breton growers hope to preserve their present abundant crop for sale the year round.

Numbers in the News

HAS A LUCKY ONE

NEWBERRY, S. C., (AP)—Auditor P. N. Abram's lucky number is 295. His telephone is 295, his postoffice box is the same number and now the highway department has obliged by sending him automobile license numbers 295.

REMEMBERS 5,000

SHAWNEE, Okla., (AP)—There are 5,000 numbers, 5,000 names and 5,000 addresses in the Shawnee telephone book. Gerald Carlton, 11, knows them all by memory. "I just like numbers," he says.

Political Footnote

HELSINKE (AP)—The Social Democrats, Finland's leading political party, have taken formal action to expel five members, all in parliament, accused of hampering and endangering the government's efforts to building a lasting friendship with Soviet Russia. The five include Karl Wiik, former party secretary, who broke away in midsummer.

Embassies of Several Countries Damaged

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The embassies of the United States, Spain and Japan and the London headquarters of the governments of Australia, South Africa and Southern Rhodesia have been damaged in air raids, it was disclosed here in a list of places authorized for publications.

The list also contains dozens of famous buildings, streets, squares and districts, which have been announced as damaged from time to time.

Michigan Has Found All Eastern Foes Easy

Penn May Be Hard To Convince and Upset Wolverines

Quakers Held Edge in Series Prior to Days of Yost

Now Stand Even with Penn Scoring Comeback In 1912 Game

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 23 (AP)—Intersectional football boasts as old as Fielding H. Yost's point-a-minute Michigan teams of the early 1900's, as well as the individual scoring laurels of Michigan's Tom Harmon and Penn's Frank Reagan, will stand or fall with the outcome of Saturday's game between the two rivals — a nation-wide sports headliner this week.

Michigan's Wolverines, in good seasons and bad, have found eastern opponents very much to their liking — all, that is, except Pennsylvania.

When Michigan's football series with Penn was resumed in 1935 after an 18-year lapse, the Quakers were the only team to hold an edge over the Wolverines since the turn of the century ushered in the golden point-a-minute era of Yost and his teams at Ann Arbor.

Michigan won in 1935 and has taken the last three games from Penn, so the series now stands all square at eight victories each and two ties.

Harmon and Company are eager to capture Saturday's contest from Penn to clear Michigan's intersectional slate as a "farewell present" to Yost, who retires as athletic director this year.

The Wolverines will carry into Saturday's clash a record of 14 victories and one defeat in competition with teams from the Atlantic seaboard since 1928. During that span Michigan has beaten Penn four times and lost only once, a 27-to-7 setback in 1936.

In the same period, Michigan defeated Harvard three times, Yale, Columbia and Princeton twice and Cornell once.

Perhaps the most famed game of the Penn-Michigan series—and one that Michigan would like to forget—was the 1912 battle in which the Wolverines scored three early touchdowns for a 21-0 lead, then wilted before an inspired Penn team to lose, 27 to 21.

All-America Roy Mercer filled in 1912 the spot that now is Reagan's. Michigan's great Jim Craig occupied the halfback berth that is now Harmon's.

Parkersburg Is Favored To Beat Pony Express Team

But Huntington Central Rates Edge -- Beckley Also on Thin Ice

By WALTER MASON

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 23 (AP) — Unbeaten Parkersburg is strictly Bearish this week, and the very good reason is Saturday's football game with the Huntington Pony Express.

Huntington Central, also with a perfect record, rates the edge for the Parkersburg game, which likely will figure largely in the selection of a West Virginia scholastic football champion.

It could be that canny Floyd Schwartzwalder held back something in those narrow victories over Charleston and Washington Irving of Clarksburg, but the big expressmen and star back Grover Wilds still should be able to handle the situation.

Beckley, another contender for state honors, goes skating on thin ice Friday night while entertaining the Mullens Rebels. With both teams undefeated, it appears to be a close one, but the prediction is that the big Rebels will upset the Beckley applecart.

Taking some more chances:

Fairmont East at Elkins Friday night—This will be victory No. 7 for Elkins, which also is eyeing that championship trophy.

Graham, Va., at Bluefield Friday—Undefeated Bluefield won't have an easy time with its Virginia neighbors, but we like 'em.

Berkeley Springs at Charles Town Friday night—an easy one for the Charles Town Panthers, who gave Hagerstown, Md., its worst walloping in many a year.

Washington Irving of Clarksburg at Morgantown Friday—Morgantown turned in a neat 14-13 victory over Weston, but they can be shaded. Take W. I.

Shinnston at Weston Friday night—We take the Shinnston Spartans to do a better job than Morgantown.

Staunton Military Academy at Greenbrier M. S. Saturday—Firmly believing in sticking with a good thing, make it Greenbrier.

College without Playing Field Is Grid Sensation

Pacific Lutheran Even Has Icelander on Its Small Squad

BY GAIL FOWLER

TACOMA, WASH., Oct. 23 (AP)—Here's a football team without a football field, goal posts or a tackling dummy, but it's the small college aerial sensation of the Pacific northwest.

The school is Pacific Lutheran, located at Parkland, seven miles from here on the way to Mount Rainier.

And the "Lutefisks," paced by three boys who earned honorable mention on the Associated Press little All-America team last year, have been soaring as high as that 14,000-foot mountain in their first four games.

The three "honorables" are Marvin (Tommygun) Tommervik, a chunky halfback five feet, eight inches tall and scaling 171; and two towering ends—Capt. Sig Sigurdson, six feet, three inches tall and weighing 186, and Earl Platt, an inch shorter and weighing 178.

Tommervik does the passing and Sigurdson and Platt haul 'em in, along with Marv Harshman, 193 pound fullback standing six feet one. Harshman after four games, leads the smaller schools in scoring with seven touchdowns and two conversions for 44 points.

Platt has caught four touchdown passes for 24 points, and Sigurdson, perhaps the only Icelander in collegiate football has caught one and converted once for seven points. Tommervik got his seven points the same way.

Now Have Weight

Last year, the Lutherans didn't have much weight or defense, so depended on Tommervik's passing arm to outscore the opposition. The "Lutefisks" won seven of eight.

This year, they have more weight to go with their air game, and they're rolling up the same kind of scores while holding their opposition to an average of less than six points a game. So far they've defeated St. Martin's 33-0; Pacific University, Northwest Conference champion, 25-6; Linfield, 45-6, and Western Washington College, 26-7, in their first Washington intercollegiate conference game.

In the Linfield game, Tommervik completed five of nine passes. Four were good for touchdowns. Against Western Washington, he completed three touchdown passes of 80, 60 and 34 yards.

Despite the lack of facilities, he has drilled his boys well in fundamentals and in the aerial circus for which his Lutes are noted.

Pigeon Race Club Series Completed

MIDLAND, Oct. 23—The Algonquin Pigeon Racing Club, with headquarters at Gilmore, staged the sixth and final race of its regular 1940 schedule this week from Cincinnati, Ohio, a distance of 300 miles.

One hundred and nineteen birds were released with Francis Hughes' "Snow Queen" taking top honors with an average of 752.95 yards per minute. A pigeon from James Merbach's loft was second with 732.03 yards per minute while a Nightengale and Nicol entry was third with 728.48.

Racing conditions were hazardous with the temperature below freezing in some sections and snow up to four inches. No birds homed the day of release while 16 covered the distance in less than 18 hours. Loss of pigeons is expected to be heavy.

Grantsville High Gains Soccer Tie

Grantsville, Oct. 23—Coach Bill Grimm's Grantsville High soccerites walloped Friendsville, 14-0, here this week and as a result, the two local booters and Accident are tied for the northern division championship of Garrett county.

A playoff will be necessary to determine the northern winner, which will oppose the southern champs for the Garrett county title. Grantsville and Accident each defeated Friendsville twice and split in home-and-home battles.

Richard Buckel, center forward, sparked Grantsville with four field goals. Jack Stowell had a pair of penalties and Gordon McKenzie and Walter Kemp each contributed a doubledecker.

Grantsville's fieldball team bowed 12-8 to Friendsville in the other part of the twin bill. The visitors led all the way and scored four of their six goals in the second quarter. The lineups:

Injuries Force Leemans Out of Giants' Lineup

Midweek Award for Merit Is Handed Minnisota

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Midweek football notes; or, up and down the valley with Stonewall Jackson:

My Agent (B-14) in Ithaca, N. Y., reports that Cornell probably will start the first team against Ohio State, but will keep several of its best plays and formations under cover.

A few more cracks like that and Ohio State's blood pressure will blow right through the ceiling.

Commercial note: The betting on the Penn-Michigan game is even money in the East and 8 to 5 in favor of Michigan in the Middle West.

Let me call to your attention, fellow side-winders, to the fact that there are eighteen men on the Georgetown University football team who have never known defeat in a college game. That's a recent record of sorts. Even the Cornells, who were knocked off by Syracuse two years ago, cannot tie it.

These eighteen Georgetown seniors went through unbeaten as freshmen and have never held the short end since. Two of them, undefeated in high school, believe there is a rule against the other team winning. If Boston College licks them on Nov. 16, they probably will consult their lawyers.

At Georgetown, they throw the tackles and guards back if they weigh less than 230 pounds.

No wonder the Hoyas

To Minnesota, as the crow flies, goes the Lardner midweek award for the best-looking record to date. The dice are warm for them, and the boys are lucky, but they have defeated, in order, the favorites for (A) the Pacific Coast title; (B) the Big Six title; and (C) the Big Ten title. No matter how the breaks went, the record will always show that Washington, Nebraska, and Ohio State were beaten by Minnesota.

You can't kick the Marines around and get away with it. Since beating the Marines of San Diego on the first day of the season, the University of Oregon has failed to score a point in three games.

"They're never the same after they meet us," says the local commander modestly.

To date, the most notorious candidates for your All-America backfield are: Thomas Harmon, the ineffable all-everything of Michigan; Francis Xavier Reagan, of Penn; Milt "Moose" Piepul, of Notre Dame; Don MacAdams, of Washington; John Kimbrough, of Texas A. and M.; Matusczak or practically anybody, of Cornell; Len Eshmont, of Fordham; Charley O'Rourke, of Boston College; George Franck, of Minnesota; Wes McAfee, of Duke; Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones, of Pittsburgh; Paul Christman, of Missouri; Bill De Correvont, of Northwestern; Cowboy Crain, of Texas; Bob Foxx, of Tennessee; and the H-boys, Hapes and Hovious, of Mississippi.

On the other hand, what is the matter, they ask you indignantly in certain coastal quarters, with Marv Tommervik, a practically unknown operative toiling in behalf of Pacific Lutheran College, hard by Tacoma, Wash.? By all accounts, the only thing the matter with Tommervik is obscurity.

They tell me this character averages better than five yards a carry and passes practically all of the time for a percentage of close to 70. All I can say is, nice going, Tommervik, old man.

Frank Leahy, coach at Boston College, has produced the headline of the week: Leahy fears St. Anslem's.

Race Notes

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—Horsemen who enter thoroughbreds in the $50,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah won't have to worry about weight penalties after the Hialeah meeting starts. Revised conditions call for the weights to be announced January 3, five days before the meeting starts.

The only penalty is an added three pounds for winners of $15,000 and after the announcement of weight. Entries for the Widener, to be run March 1, close November 18.

Nasca O. K.

Breckinridge Long's good 2-year-old filly, Nasca, who was reported as "bucked" last week, was on the track at Laurel yesterday for a mile workout. Trainer Guy Bedwell hopes to have her ready for the Selima Stakes on Saturday.

Even Up

The streak of upsets at New York tracks was badly cracked yesterday by two racers from Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Moore's Circle M Ranch. Speed To Spare and Get Off, but form at Laurel continued to be irregular. Speed To Spare paid only $3.70 for $2 after winning yesterday's second race at Empire City and Get Off, a high-class campaigner, returned $6.40 for $2 for his victory in the featured Hannibal Handicap. Get Off an a strong race to finish a length and a half ahead of Joseph Pepp's No Sir, with William Woodward's Foxbrough third.

At Laurel, E. R. Bradley's Big Event, odds-on favorite in the featured Tuscarosa Purse, came in a poor third as H. P. Metcalf's Abbots Maid, a $20-for-$2 shot, beat out A. C. Bostwick's Steady On by a neck for first money. Jockey Freddie Smith was booed by the crowd when he failed to drive Big Event after she was obviously beaten and let her come in six lengths behind.

Can't Wait

According to word received at Laurel from Trainer Tommy Taylor, Myron Selznick's Can't Wait, recent winner over Hash, will reach the Maryland track tomorrow or Friday to race in the $15,000-added Washington Handicap Saturday.

The Philippines have about 1,600 different species of fish, only about 100 of which are marketed.

Yates Heads Rifle Club at Frostburg

FROSTBURG, Oct. 23—The Frostburg Rifle and Pistol Club recently elected Henry Yates president for the year. Other officers are Francis Cunning, vice-president; Gurney Beeman, secretary; Joseph Freeland, treasurer; Howard Brode, range officer, and Robert Brain, publicity officer.

The club is planning to hold rifle and shotgun matches during the winter on its range on the Hansell farm near Hoffman. Last week, the local organization began its schedule of winter matches in the Allegany Rifle League.

Following the election of officers, the club members, who have volunteered to act as home guards, took the oath of allegiance.

Gun Club To Stage Ham Shoot Today

The Cumberland Shrine Gun Club will hold a ham shoot at its Ali Ghan Country Club range this afternoon beginning at 1 o'clock. Improvements completed this week include two auto-angle traps and other changes for the convenience of gunners and spectators.

There will be both trap and skeet shooting with a prize list of 18 hams. In the Lewis class 15-bird event one ham will go to each five contestants with a limit of two. There will also be two card events for non-shooters.

Several out-of-town shooters will take part in today's gunning.

Petersburg	0	2	0	.000
Franklin	0	4	0	.000

Ridgeley High's gridiron aggregation, which shared the Potomac Valley Conference championship last season with the Parsons High Pathers, will invade Moorefield Friday for the headline conference clash this weekend.

Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeleyites have copped three straight loop engagements and are setting the pace while Moorefield, with three victories in four conference games, is tied with Parsons for third. Last year, Ridgeley bested the Yellow Jackets, 14-0.

In other Friday conference skirmishes, Parsons will journey to Piedmont and Romney will go to Petersburg to tangle with the Vikings. Piedmont and Petersburg will be seeking revence for setbacks a year ago when the Pathers trimmed Piedmont, 20-0, and the Vikings bowed to Romney, 41-6.

Last week, Parsons set a new season scoring record for the conference when it trouced Franklin, 53-12, at Parsons. C. Simmons went over for three touchdowns while Evans, Wratchford, Cox, Riley and W. Simmons each tallied a six-pointer. Aulde accounted for both of Franklin's scoresfl The lineups:

Pos.	Parsons (53)	Franklin (12)
LE	Parsons	Dolly
LT	Strawderman	Lambert
LG	C. Gordon	Kimble

The Eagles came out of a three-way first place tie with possession of first place, defeating the Bob Whites 2-1 in Outdoor Club League rolling at the Roxy, but the Sparrows supplied most of the fireworks by posting new team marks and presenting a new game record-holder in Ernie Hartman during the week's firing.

By downing the Jay Birds 3-0 the Sparrows moved alongside the Bob Whites in the runnerup spot, while in the other engagement the Blue Jays hopped out of the cellar by downing the Cat Birds 3-0.

The Sparrows piled up totals of 848-2,291 to break their own 780-2,241 records, while Hartman upped Paul Gellner's game mark from 198 to 206. Jim Deck, of the Cat Birds, made it a sweep in the record department by hitting 466 to break John McGeady's 460. The scores:

Defend Challedon Owner for Taking Star Out of 'Cap

Impost of 132 Pounds Not Fair Package for Laurel Race

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 — Latest to enter the controversy over what is and what isn't excessive weight for a handicap champion is Harry Parr 3d, treasurer of the Maryland Jockey Club and owner of a string of thoroughbreds.

"I do not believe that a really good horse should be asked to carry an unnatural burden just to put him on even terms with another horse which is not even in his class," said Parr.

Parr Tells Stand

"It is my opinion that the thoroughbred standing at the top of handicap ranks should be given the weight which he has proved that he can carry best at what ever distance the race in question might be run. Then the other horses should be dropped down accordingly, even if they must be dropped under 100 pounds.

"I never have been able to understand why a horse like Challedon should be broken down by carrying excess weight in an attempt to put him on even terms with a $1,500 plater which some other owner is trying to make into a handicap horse."

Challedon Withdrawn

The controversy started yesterday when Owner William L. Brann declared his great horse Challedon out of the $15,000-added Washington Handicap, to be run at Laurel on Saturday, because he felt his horse was "abused" when given a 132-pound package.

Racing Secretary John P. Turner, who assigned the weights for the 47 Washington 'Cap eligibles, explained that he found it necessary to give Challedon 132 pounds in order to give other less-prominent eligibles a chance for victory.

Parr himself is the owner of one of these less-prominent eligibles.

Parr Expands Views

"My horse, Ebonito, which was assigned 104 pounds for the mile-and-a-quarter test, is on the ailing list and did not accept the issue. Therefore, I didn't pay a lot of attention to the Washington weights.

"I think a horse has run his best race at a mile and a quarter under 126 pounds, that should be his burden in a valuable classic and the other runners should be dropped down the weight scale accordingly."

Stryker Upholds Turner

Major Goss L. Stryker, president of the Maryland State Fair, Inc., which operates the Laurel track, made very little comment upon learning that Challedon would not race.

"It is the owner's privilege to accept or turn down the weights," he said. "I am sure that John Turner was attempting to treat everyone fairly when he made up the list of weights and I have every confidence in his ability."

The controversy did more than bring comment from owners, trainers and officials. Some folks went back into the records to determine just how many of the thoroughbreds of 132 pounds or more into the winner's circle.

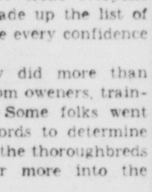

It was found that the greatest high-weight carrier of the turf was Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, which is now a sound horse in stud at the Sagamore Farm, in the Worthington Valley.

Discovery carried 135 pounds to take the 1935 Arlington Handicap, 136 pounds in winning the Brooklyn in 1936, 131 pounds to score in the Bunker Hill in 1935 and 132 to triumph in the Butler the same season.

Likewise he toted 130 to win the Maryland Handicap when a 3-year-old won with 139 in the Merchants' and Citizens' in 1935 and won the Saratoga Handicap of 1936 with 132 aboard.

Other notable achievements with high weight in recent seasons include Exterminator's 135 in the 1922 Brooklyn, the same horse's victory with 133 in the Clark Handicap; Grey Lag's score with 132 pounds in the 1922 Empire City Handicap; Roman Soldier's win in the Granite Slate with 132 up, and Purchase's Huron victory while carrying 134.

THAT FIRST SHOCK

In the classic scramble of the ivy and the Big Ten this week, with the powerful forces of Michigan and Ohio State thrown against the equally powerful forces of Pennsylvania and Cornell, there is one important point to consider.

Of the four teams involved only Ohio State has yet bounced against the type of opposition that all four must face. Pennsylvania, Michigan and Cornell will get their first real offensive and defensive shocks of the fall campaign. Ohio State alone has been to the real wars against Pittsburgh, Northwestern and Minnesota.

Outside of Michigan State, the Wolverines has romped through California, Harvard and Illinois—who are not Pennsylvania by many kilometers.

Cornell and Pennsylvania have been only lightly tested, although Dave Allerdice of Princeton was more than a mere pain in the neck for the Red and Blue.

So Saturday will bring on the first important showdowns for three of the country's leading squads.

Ohio State, beaten twice in two nip-and-tuck games, will come riding hell-for-leather against Cornell with a football team that needed only a yard plunge to beat Minnesota which has the best record of the year. Cornell, as good as the Big Red of Ithaca happens to be, will find the Scarlet Scourge something entirely different from Colgate, Army and Syracuse.

Stars To Be Tested

Both Tom Harmon and Francis Reagan, the two whirling dervishes from Michigan and Penn, will have to travel against far better defensive play than either has encountered up to this October spot.

Pennsylvania, with her fast-charging line and her alert backers-up, has been cobra venom against running attacks. But Pennsylvania hasn't been called on to roll back such assaulters as Harmon, Evashevski and Westfall.

And you might also add that Michigan has faced no such backs as Reagan, Allen, Dutcher and several others, operating back of an alert, fast, aggressive Pennsylvania line.

It is quite possible that both messrs. Harmon and Reagan will step into the middle of serious trouble so far as any running wild is concerned. It can happen that way against any rugged defense. There is always the chance that either or both may be shackled since there are no supermen. And you might also remember that both will be closely watched—just as Illinois had Harmon guarded a year ago.

Pennsylvania was far too vulnerable last Saturday against air raids. Michigan has no Allerdice, but the Penn pass defense will have to be tripled to keep away from serious danger, even if Harmon is held in partial check. When a team, outclassed as Princeton was, in all other ways, can pick up 350 yards, through the air, something must be out of focus on the other side.

Cornell and Ohio State

The second testing of the Ivy at its best takes place at Ithaca.

The two beatings Ohio State has already taken make the Buckeye invaders even more formidable.

Ohio State has more man power than Cornell carries. But it hasn't shown anything like the same amount of brain displacement. You won't find a harder driving backfield than the one which offers Don Scott, Langhurst and Strausbaugh averaging around 200 pounds—and all fast.

Beaten by Cornell a year ago after taking a 14 to 0 lead, beaten in its last two starts by Northwestern and Minnesota in games the Scourge might just as well have won, if a football team was ever keyed upt he name should be Ohio State.

They told me in Columbus a few weeks ago that their main 1940 goal was not Minnesota nor Michigan—but Cornell. Apparently they were none too keen about the Big Ten Champions falling before the charge of the once clinging Ivy. Their goats, ever since, have been bleating far from home.

So Cornell will have a busy afternoon. And remember again that Cornell so far hasn't faced a testing game.

Shaughnessy and Stanford

Several years ago at a suggestion from the late Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt we sent a strong endorsement to Chicago concerning Clark Shaughnessy, then at Loyola, New Orleans. We had no idea at the time that we were trying to help shove Clark into the tiger's lair or the lion's den.

Last winter on the West coast we offered the same Shaughnessy recommendation to Stanford, after Tiny Thornhill had left. His Far West reception, in critical circles, was none too enthusiastic.

This week Stanford steps out against Howard Jones's Southern Californians. You can gamble this time there will be no part of a 33 to 0 route.

No coach in a new and a stormy setting has done a better job, now rated second to Washington in the Rose Bowl dream of gold and glory—especially gold. I doubt that any team can handle Jimmy Phelan's Huskies along the rim of the Far West. They have much the better team, whatever happens.

But Stanford at least is on her way up and Shaughnessy has already turned in more than his share.

Potomac State Preps for Glenville Game

Second Home Tilt For Catamounts On Tap Saturday

Several Changes in Lineup Made by Coach Dana Lough

Keyser, W. Va., Oct. 23—The Potomac State Catamounts, with high hopes of upsetting the dope bucket, are preparing to meet the Glenville College Pioneers Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the second home game of the year for Coach Dana Lough's eleven.

Several changes have been made in the Cats' lineup during scrimmages the past two days in an effort to find a combination that will click. Against Mount Saint Mary's last week, the locals played their best game of the season and with better luck on the punting end could probably have gained a scoreless tie. Especially noticeable was harder tackling and more punch in the running game.

Bill Starford, who played the entire game in the backfield and who was the outstanding gridder on the field, will be a starter while Leo Carr will probably be moved from an end position to halfback. Tom Pownall has been shifted from guard to the blocking back position and appears to add both speed and aggressiveness to the ball-carrying department.

Tony Paulin, a tackle, received a sprained knee and will probably be replaced by George Mullett. Carr, Pownall and Mullett are light but give the State attack additional speed.

Glenville has been defeated twice this year and the Catamounts hope to become the third outfit to best the Pioneers. The Pioneers defeated King's College in their opening engagement.

Dr. Alden Thompson, dean of the college of physical education of West Virginia University, will referee the clash. Harry Samuels, director of intramural athletics at West Virginia will be the umpire. "Eck" Miers, Keyser, will be head linesman.

Potomac State, in losing five straight games to Morris Harvey, Blue Ridge, Waynesburg, St. Francis and Mt. St. Mary's, has failed to score a touchdown. Safeties were registered against Morris Harvey and Blue Ridge.

1,100,000 Sportsmen To Hunt Ducks, Geese

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—More than 1,100,000 sportsmen, the Interior department's fish and wildlife service predicts, will hunt wild duck and geese this year.

The service reported that during the 1939 season (July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940) 1,111,561 hunters bought the one dollar "duck" stamps which must be carried by all migratory-waterfowl hunters over sixteen years old.

In the 1938 season (July 1, 1938 to June 30, 1939) there were 1,002,715 stamps sold. Since inception of the stamp sale program in 1934 a grand total of $4,584,143 have been sold.

The record showed that of the "big ten" of the migratory-wildfowl hunting world last season (July 1, 1939-June 30, 1940) Minnesota led with 120,034 stamps sold.

Figures by states included these stamp purchases for the 1938 (July 1, 1938 to June 30, 1939) season, and the 1939 (July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940) season:

Maryland 6,861 and 8,993; West Virginia 789 and 1,037; Virginia 4,538 and 6,767.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—The longest kick of the year, outside of that which some alumni body will register against a coach whose team loses its first game, 50 to 0, and progresses rapidly backward from there, probably will be listed as the 92-yard boot of Preston Johnson of SMU, but you can start a four-alarm argument anywhere by insisting it is the longest on record.

In the first place, unusual punting feats were not recorded until fairly recently, and over the years too many dads have punted too many football on too many fields for anyone to make the definite statement that one certain kick was the daddy of all kicks.

Recently we asked Jim Thorpe whether he ever punted the length of the field. He nodded.

"On the fly?" we asked incredulously. Uncle Jim thought a minute, then said:

"Yes, I guess it was. I was standing eight yards back of our goal line and the ball took one little hop and went outside on the other team's three-yard line. I used to kick them 80-85 yards right along."

Maybe some of those early day kicks grow longer with the years. Memory does queer things, but it never shrinks anything. It always stretches. But in view of Thorpe's other feats we'll take his word for it.

Nearly every fan who has followed football for a number of years can recall some punt which sticks in his mind, or rather expands in his mind, as the kick to end all kicks.

We've heard of a few of these seven-league boots. There was Harry Workman's kick at Ohio State around 1924 which traveled from one end zone to the other. There was a punt by Len Casanova of Santa Clara in 1924 which was good for a net gain of 97 yards against St. Mary's.

Parnham, playing with Georgia Tech against Georgia the same year, is credited by witnesses with a 90-yard boot, and just three or four years ago Sam Francis of Nebraska got one off for 82 yards against Pittsburgh, which is worthy of mention because it was all in the air and came late in the game when Sam was so tired he didn't know where his next breath was coming from.

It used to be the practice of teams with a great kicker or passer to have him give an exhibition before a game, partly for the amazement of the crowd and partly to cause an inferiority complex to well up in the opposing team.

John Levi, great Haskell player a few years ago, used to be placed on exhibition that way. When we were about 30 years younger than we are today we used to crawl under the fence to watch the Lawrence College team play at Appleton, Wis., and vividly we recall the time Oshkosh normal came to town.

Oshkosh had a giant of a man named Arlie Mucks, who was to play later at Wisconsin. Mucks would get out there and kick the ball into the next country, and it was many years later before we figured out that maybe there were greater kickers in the world than Mucks after all.

The only real way to rate a kick is on its carry, as the length of the roll is too much a matter of luck. We've seen poor punts land just right and skip along the ground like they had outboard motors, and we've seen fine kicks plop down and stick like they had landed in a tub of soft butter.

Lady Maryland To Be Retired After Fall Race Season

Voted Best Handicap Mare of 1939--The Female Challedon

LAUREL, Oct. 23—Lady Maryland—the "Challedon" of the older female racers— will be retired when the fall season is completed and will join the ranks of the State's thoroughbred matrons next spring.

The daughter of Sir Greysteel and Palestra, by Prince Palatine, which rose from the claiming ranks to become the champion handicap mare of last year, has been purchased from Gustave Ring by Walter Chrysler, Jr.

Lady Maryland raced in New York a few days ago and it was apparent the sore knee, which kept her from fulfilling stake engagements on several occasions, is on the "bum" again. She failed to show her best speed, finishing among the also rans.

When the 6-year-old's campaign has been completed she will be shipped to Charles Williams' Stadacona Farm, near Glyndon, in the Worthington Valley. There she will join about fourteen other Chrysler mares.

Bred at Mrs. Raskob's Farm

Although Lady Maryland's first mate has not been announced, it is more than likely she will visit the court of the famous imported sire Bahram, which was purchased in England by a syndicate of which Chrysler is a prominent member. Bahram is standing at Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm, not far from Stadacona.

Lady Maryland was bred by Mrs. Helena Raskob at her Pioneer Point Farm on the Eastern Shore. The horse was sold to Mrs. Robert H. Heighe and raced under the green-and-white silks of this Maryland sportswoman for about two and a half years.

At Pimlico three springs ago the Heighe Stable made the mistake of running Lady Maryland under a $2,500 claiming tag. She was haltered out of the event by Ring and has paid for herself over and over again.

While racing under the orange Ring silks, Lady Maryland was conditioned by three different trainers —P. Dalee Watts, Buter Bedwell and A. G. Robertson. It was Watts who encouraged the Washington owner to make the claim.

Voted Best 'Cap Mare Last Year

In a poll of some 30 sports writers, Lady Maryland was voted the best handicap mare of 1939. She was in the money in seven stakes and earned $11,360. That's not a small amount for a mare to tuck away in her saddle bag, especially when the majority of her races are against the so-called sterner sex.

Lady Maryland should develop into an ideal type of broodmare. She has plenty of size and is big in limb and bone. Her dam, Palestra, which is still in production at Earnest Hackney's farm near Darlington, has produced several good runners.

Can't Wait Will Meet Issue in Special Race

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Pimlico Special lost William Woodward's crack three-year old Fenelon today, but gained Myron Selznick's Can't Wait—a campaigner previously overlooked in bids to the Maryland jockey club's "horse of the year" race.

The jockey club said Movie Magnate Selznick had accepted an invitation for the five-year Old Can't Wait to run in the Special Nov. 1, while Woodward advised that the recently-injured Fenelon was out of the race and out of training.

Thus the field looms as Can't Wait, W. L. Brann's Challedon and possibly Mrs. Payne Whitney's Hash and C. S. Howard's Mioland. Brann has indicated that Challedon—the 1939 winner—will run, but the club has not heard from Mrs. Whitney or Howard.

The Special has been billed as a "triple-feature" race, with Challedon and Nash, four year olds, running for supremacy in their division; Fenelon and Moland, three-year olds, doing the same, and all trying for the "horse of the year" title.

It is a weight-for-age, mile and three-sixteenths race for a winner-take-all purse of $10,000.

Many Rated for Backfield Berths For All-America

Texas Aggies Add to Hot Race by Shifting Carriers

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Charge the Texas Aggies with adding a little more confusion to the All-America backfield situation.

Big John Kimbrough, the Aggies' great line-smashing fullback, was a 1939 All-America and an undisputed one. His team-mate, Jimmy Thomason, got no general recognition but happened to be just about the best blocking back the Southwest Conference ever had seen.

Through the first three weeks of the current season, it was the same story. But last week, against Texas Christian, the Aggies reversed assignments and Thomason blossomed out as a first-class offensive star, carrying the ball well and catching two touchdown passes. Kimbrough, meanwhile, took over the main backfield blocking job for the day.

This was by all odds the most interesting backfield experiment last week but the Aggies held no monopoly on spectacular ball-carrying exploits.

South Shows Trio

Frank Reagan, Penn's brilliant back, had the kind of a field day against Princeton that players dream about. He scored 31 points against the Tigers, kicked magnificently and generally was the spearhead of the fearsome Penn offense. His clash with Michigan's Tommy Harmon this week should be something to see. Harmon, although he scored a touchdown and kicked a field goal and one extra point against Illinois, was overshadowed by his team-mate, hard driving Bob Westfall.

Down at Birmingham, the experts got a chance to look at three of the south's most brilliant backs as Tennessee bowled over Alabama. Jimmy Nelson, the 180-pound Alabama junior, carried the full load of the Crimson Tide's offense, kicked well, led the defense and all in all, held his own with the Tennessee stars, first Bob Foxx and then little Johnny Butler. Foxx, suffering from a leg injury, played only a quarter and Butler came in to pace the Volunteers' offense.

Scott Hits Stride

Don Scott, Ohio State's burly quarterback, finally hit his stride against Minnesota. He was a standout in a losing cause as Bruce Smith tallied both of Minnesota's touchdowns.

In the Southern Conference, Jim LaLanne of North Carolina, Tony Gallovich of Wake Forest and Bill Dudley of Virginia made the headlines with their exploits while Duke, visiting Colgate in the north, uncovered a promising youngster in Moffat Storer.

Among the fullbacks, Milt Piepul of Notre Dame, Norman Standlee of Stanford, Mort Landsberg of Cornell, George Paskvan of Wisconsin and Jimm Kisselburgh of Oregon State, must be ranked with the best.

Among other backs who attracted attention last week were Hunt and D'Antonio, Marshall.

Savoy pinmen, admitted to the Ladies' City League this week along with a team from LaVale, today topped the six-club circuit as a result of winning three games from LaVale at the Savoy. Both the new outfits have rolled three less games than the other teams and will make up the deficit at a later date.

The Diamond combination also won three games, trimming the Club on the winners' lanes while SS. Peter and Paul handed Roxy a triple setback at the Roxy.

Three records were broken by Savoy duckpin artists. Ursula Hartman had 434 to shatter the set mark of 430 made by Pauline Cioni of the Roxy. Savoy also racked up new team records of 667 for one game and 1,833 for the set. Both the old highs of 611 and 1,685 were made by Diamond. The scores:

Captain Lou Amato's Roxy bowling team will go into its seventh week City League match with the Club Juniors next Sunday at the Club enjoying a two-game lead over the Club Seniors as a result of a 3-0 victory over the Silver Lanes at Cresaptown this week.

Roxy picked up another game when the Club Seniors copped a pair from the SS. Peter and Paul Seniors at the Club. In other matches, the American Brewers won two from Diamond at the Roxy and the SS. Peter and Paul Juniors took a close 2-1 battle from the Club Juniors on the Saints' lanes.

Harrison topped the Roxyites with 491, Paul Stakem and "Pie" Conley each had 518 for the Club seniors. Albert "Bunny Saum led the Brewers with 452 and Childress was high for the SS. Peter and Paul Juniors with 495.

The second game of the SS. Peter-Paul Juniors-Club Juniors battle ended in a deadlock and in the first box of the third game, the Saints scattered 78 sticks to the Club Juniors' 72 to win. The Diamonds, led by Roy Ammons with 468, controlled the Brewers by 46 pins but lost the match.

In other matches next Sunday, the Club Seniors will oppose American Brewing at the Roxy, the Silver Lanes will invade SS. Peter and Paul to meet the Juniors and the SS. Peter and Paul Seniors will tangle with Diamond on the latter's alleys. The scores:

Medwick Goes To Clinic for Check-Up

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Joe Medwick, Brooklyn Dodger outfield star, is going to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., next month for a general check-up, the Dodgers announced today.

"There is nothing in particular wrong with Joe that we know of," said John McDonald, club secretary. "Joe merely asked permission to go along with Manager Leo Durocher who visits the clinic each year for a check-up on an ear trouble that has bothered him since childhood."

Embassy Big Five Downs Frostburg

The Embassy Big Five, duckpin champions of Allegany county by virtue of their two-year record of 48 victories in 52 matches, opened the 1940-41 season this week by coming from behind to whip the Frostburg Big Five by 39 pins on the Majestic lanes in Frostburg.

Frostburg, with Jacons spilling 204 sticks, jumped in an eight-pin lead in the first game and took advantage of an Embassy lapse in the second to boost their margin by 79 pins, but the local outfit whipped out the 88-maple deficit by spilling 1,075 maples in the third clash.

Louie Amato topped Embassy for the set with 510, while Harry Cioni helped pull the match out of the fire by scattering 214 pins in the final brush. Johnny Myers and Bill Dudley topped Frostburg with 536 and 516, respectively.

Embassy pinmen were arrayed in their new bowling shorts for the first time in their Frostburg appearance and, according to reports, these glad rags dazzled the home crew. The Embassy outfit will meet Frostburg in a return match here at an early date and also has lines out for engagements with Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington teams. The scores:

Beall Soccerites Shade Kitzmiller

Frostburg, Oct. 23—A field goal by Pressman in the first period brought Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall High School soccer team a 2-0 victory over Kitzmiller High booters here this week. It was the eight straight triumph for the Frostburg eleven.

Beall muffed numerous chances to score more points because the line failed to follow up shots. Kitzmiller played a steady brand of ball with Fullbacks Junkins and B. Paugh standing out on the defense. The lineups:

Pos.	Beall	Kitzmiller
Goal	Brode	Downes
RFB	A. Middleton	Junkins
LFB	Harvey	B. Paugh
RHB	Pressman	Brown
CHB	Blair	Gough
LHB	Kasecamp	Dawson

Beatrice Clifford Takes Stand Against Husband In Murder Trial Here

John H. Clifford Testifies He Was Afraid of Man He Shot To Death in Park Here

Conflicting stories of the fatal shooting in Riverside park the night of May 13 were told by a husband and wife in circuit court yesterday. The husband is John H. Clifford on trial for the murder of Kermit Bailey, 24, of Ridgeley.

The state rested its case yesterday afternoon charging that on May 13, Clifford procurred a gun, bought twelve shells, met an unarmed man in Riverside park by appointment and shot him dead. Star witness for the state was Mrs. Beatrice Clifford, wife of the defendant.

Clifford was the first witness sent to the witness box yesterday by the defense. He told the jury that Bailey threatened him prior to the rendezvous in the park May 13. When he discovered his wife and Bailey had been on intimate terms for two years, his main concern was gaining custody of his child.

Was Afraid of Bailey

Clifford said, however, he feared Bailey and went to police several times in regard to the situation prior to May 13. He shot Bailey when his rival reached for his hip pocket, Clifford said.

Jurors will start their second day in the jury box this morning. A cross examination of Clifford by the state will start at 9:15 a. m. Yesterday, the jurors heard Associate Judge William A. Huster emphatically declare that "we do not have any unwritten law in Maryland" in answer to what was termed improper questioning by defense attorneys.

Mrs. Clifford First Witness

Mrs. Clifford went to the stand yesterday as the first witness for the state. She waived her legal privilege of refusing to testify against her husband.

On May 13, Clifford, Bailey and herself agreed to an appointment in Riverside park. She understood the appointment was for the purpose of discussing a divorce, on what grounds and who was to have custody of their child, she testified. Clifford and Bailey both wanted to ask her questions, she said.

"I see you've brought her over," Clifford said addressing himself to Bailey, the witness testified.

Bailey replied, "now Johnny, we agreed there was to be no funny stuff. You haven't got a gun or a knife have you?"

Clifford replied, "you know better than that, don't ask questions like that," the witness said.

Mrs. Clifford said her husband stood up and walked back and forth as they three conversed for about fifteen minutes. Clifford finally asked about a divorce, then walked behind the bench, she said.

Bailey Questioned Clifford

Bailey asked when she first started going with Clifford then asked if they had planned to establish a home and raise more children. Clifford said yes but he was not telling the truth, the witness declared. She and her husband had split up long before Bailey entered the picture, she said.

Bailey told Clifford, "you're not a man in my eyes. You've never treated her right. I intend to take good care of her and Gail," the witness continued.

Clifford said his "wife hadn't done right," asked Bailey what he should do, the witness said. Bailey replied that "I'd give her money and leave."

At this point, Mrs. Clifford said she told Bailey, "it would be different with us."

"Yes, I know Bee," Bailey replied.

"It was then Johnny shot," the witness said.

Bailey had been standing with his left foot on the bench, his chin cupped in his left hand. He had just flicked his cigarette away. Bailey's right hand was either on his hip or hanging at his side, she said. He did not reach for his hip pocket, the witness declared.

Clifford said "you'll never get my wife" as he fired, the woman testified.

Bailey had not threatened Clifford or given any indication of attacking or fighting in any way, the witness said. The conversation was quiet and peaceful, she declared.

Mrs. Clifford said she struck her husband in the face with her pocketbook, shouted, "don't you dare shoot him."

When she kneeled down beside Bailey, Clifford pushed her and knocked her away, she said. When she got up Clifford was kicking Bailey. She pulled at him, finally bit his hand, she testified.

Does Not Love Husband

On cross examination, Mrs. Clifford testified that she did not love her husband now and didn't love him when she married him. She did love him just before their child was born, she said.

Clifford left their home in Ridgeley around Easter time, she said. Bailey came to visit two weeks later she said. Then he left and came back. His aim was to get a job in Cumberland. The Cliffords made their home with Mrs. Louisa Woods, Mrs. Clifford's mother. Bailey did not pay board while living in the home but bought his own food, the witness declared.

Clifford went to the witness box as the first defense witness. He testified that for some time "Bee

Gateway Chatter

Allegany county Republicans as well as hundreds of Democrats who are opposed to the third term for President Roosevelt will be interested in the results of the New York state and city poll being conducted by the New York Daily News, which is one of the few New York city papers still supporting the president.

Results of the state-wide poll as carried in Wednesday's issue of the paper shows Willkie leading with a percentage of 50.2 while Roosevelt's percentage is 49.8.

The state-wide straw vote gives Willkie 11,114 votes to 11,036 for Roosevelt. In up-state New York Willkie's percentage is 62.9 and Roosevelt's 37.1, while in New York city including Long Island, Roosevelt leads with a percentage of 62.0 while Willkie's percentage in the city is 38.0.

—o—

While on the subject of straw-vote polls readers will be interested in the straw vote being taken in five states, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin, by the Chicago Tribune.

Results of the poll as of Tuesday of this week show Willkie leading in all five states. Out of 90,163 ballots taken so far in the poll the votes up to and including Monday show the following results:

	Willkie	Per-cent	Roose-velt	Per-cent
Ill.: (6 day tab.)	37,070	50.6	31,694	49.4
Mich. (14 cities)	3,685	51.8	3,426	44.2
Ind. (19 cities)	3,752	52.1	3,451	47.9
Wis. (13 cities)	3,665	53.1	3,702	46.9
Iowa (19 cities)	3,394	56.2	2,635	43.8

—o—

Perhaps other citizens did the same thing but Gateway knows of one Washington street family who displayed an American flag on their front porch yesterday in observance of the nation-wide "No Third Term Day." Willkie several days ago asked the nation to join him on October 23 in observing "No Third Term Day."

—o—

William J. Edwards, secretary of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club used the following from the Pathfinder in his weekly Kiwanis letter and Gateway is passing it on to readers of the column:

"Who's your wife going to vote for, Roosevelt or Willkie?"

"She'll vote for the man I vote for."

"Well, who are you going to vote for?"

"She hasn't decided yet."

Hallowe'en Parade To Start at 7 P. M.

Annual Celebration Will Be Held Here Next Thursday Night

The parade committee for the Hallowe'en celebration sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Henry Hart Post No. 1411, met last night in the chamber of commerce office and completed plans for the mammoth mummers parade, to be held Thursday night, October 31.

The marchers will form on Fifth and Seymour streets and the parade will get under way promptly at 7 p. m.

Replies from invitations to many organizations, eight fire companies, six fraternal marching bodies and 350 individual entries have been received.

Cash prizes will be awarded and all contestants to participate should get in contact with E. G. A. Snider, Box 191, this city.

Cumberland Stores Are Now Ready for Suburban Day Sales

Cumberland stores are ready today for the city-wide sales event known as "Suburban Days" which will be held today, Friday and Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Mercantile Bureau of the chamber of commerce, is the first of its kind tried here in the autumn season.

Stores will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight, but will close at 5 p. m. Friday and remain open Saturday until the usual Saturday night closing of 9 p. m.

Members of the Mercantile bureau announced yesterday that they will pay clerks time and a half for all over-time work in connection with the "Suburban Day" sales event.

A.F. of L. Picket Is Attacked

David Enfield Suffers Nose Injury while on Duty in Cresaptown

State police were called last night to the theater in Cresaptown after, they said an AF of L picket on duty there was attacked by a bystander.

Trooper John H. Doud, who investigated, said David Enfield, 45, of the Walton hotel, Cumberland, was assaulted by Clarence Grant, 44, of Cresaptown.

According to Doud, Enfield was picketing the theater for the union because a non-union operator was employed. The picket suffered an nose injury, he said.

Grant, considerably larger than Enfield, was not hurt.

Following the affair, Enfield reported the incident to police and returned to Cresaptown where he obtained an assault warrant against Grant from Magistrate Roy Bowman.

Trooper Doud said Grant was intoxicated when arrested outside of a bowling alley in Cresaptown. He added that Grant reportedly belonged to no union.

Grant was released under $50 bond pending a hearing in Cresaptown.

County Draft Boards Ready For Drawing

Most Cards Have Been Numbered; Two Clerks Are Selected

The four draft boards in Allegany county are busy organizing and numbering cards of the 11,331 men who registered under the Selective Service act Oct. 16.

Each man who registered will be given a number by the local boards and each board will post a list of names and numbers of those registered in the county as soon as the work is completed, probably today.

The drawing of key numbers in Washington next Tuesday will determine which of the men registered in Allegany county will be called first by local boards. After the numbers are drawn questionnaires will be sent to the men who will be subject to call in the first draft.

Some Clerks Named

Board No. 1 will have offices in the Virginia-Lee apartments at 215 Virginia avenue. DeLisle Chaney has been named clerk of the board. Matthew B. Coffey has been selected chairman and Harold A. Powell, secretary. Arthur J. Weber is the other member of the board.

Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., is chairman of Board No. 2 which will have offices in the Union street school building. Robert Jackson has been chosen secretary. Michael O. Blake is the other member of the board. Emmett Fahey has been named clerk. Board No. 2 has listed 2,576 men.

Board No. 3 with offices in the Union street school building has 1,868 me nunder its jurisdiction. The selection of a clerk will be made later. Temporary workers have been doing the clerk's work. Franklin H. Ankeney is chairman of this board with Marshall Wolford and William Morgan members.

Robert Glenn, of Lonaconing is chairman of Board No. 4 with Michael J. Byrnes and John "Peg" Stewart both of Frostburg the other members. The clerk has not been selected and the number of men under the jurisdiction of the board has not been announced but is expected to be about 3,800.

Registrants Responsible

Lieut. Col. Henry C. Stanford, draft chief for Maryland announced yesterday that each registrant must assume complete responsibility for seeing to it that his name and serial number are on the lists posted at local draft headquarters. Failure to do so is a violation of the Selective Service act.

Stanford pointed this out when asked what steps were being taken to prevent clerical mistakes that may keep the name of a registrant off the lists and thereby make it impossible for him to be called to service.

'She's Lying' Woman Cries As State's Star Witness Testifies in Murder Case

The decorum of circuit court was momentarily shattered yesterday afternoon when a young woman in the audience arose and took the state's star witness to task.

Mrs. John H. Clifford, the state's star witness in the murder case now being tried, was on the stand at the time. The state's attorney had just asked Mrs. Clifford, the wife of the defendant, if the victim, Kermit Bailey, had been armed the night of the shooting.

The state's attorney wheeled in his chair, inquired, "are you a witness in this case?"

"No, but I'd like to be," the woman replied.

The court ordered her removal from the courtroom.

Elmer B. Gower, defense attorney, addressing the court, said the young woman was "the former Mrs. Clifford."

She proved to be Mrs. Hazel Meligan, 28, of West Virginia, who became Clifford's first wife about ten years ago. They were divorced in 1939. Mrs. Meligan has remarried since.

Earlier in the day, the young woman had tittered derisively at some of the questions asked by the state and the answers made by the state's witnesses.

When Clifford was brought to the court room from the county jail earlier in the day, Mrs. Meligan was waiting for him, and greeted him warmly.
